Vox Calamantis in Deserto Declaratio: A Declaration for a New American Liberty

This is the first point to be made: and the first action to be taken is to pull ourselves together. If we are all going to be destroyed by an atomic bomb, let that bomb – when it comes – find us doing sensible and human things—praying, working, teaching, reading, listening to music, bathing the children, playing tennis, chatting to our friends over a pint and a game of darts—not huddled together like frightened sheep and thinking about bombs. They may break our bodies (a microbe can do that) but they need not dominate our minds.

On Living in an Atomic Age (1948)

C.S. Lewis

We hold these Truths to be self-evident, that all Men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness—

Declaration of Independence (1776)

Thomas Jefferson, 3rd President of the United States of America

since we began this Humanity-altering journey.

Preface (6th Edition)

As with all endeavors, the first draft is incomplete and filled with various errors that bother but cannot be helped except upon revision. Such was the state of this book project that started in the summer of 2020 as part of an updated foreword to a book published in late 2019. Now, three years on, the clarity of time allows for a more permanent view to put to paper of events lived and still to come.

We entered the 2020s unaware of the agenda that has now unfolded. There were conspiracies about a long-term subversion of the human will and nation-states. There was an attempt at a formalized coup over a phone call, a distraction, but nothing to the scale seen, and operating like a military operation put in full motion, that COVID-19 became (and ongoing) through the “vaccines” and “digitalization of humanity.”

When I chose the title Operation Virus: The Delivering of COVID, Chaos and Communism (to the United States and the World) it was compact, but incomplete. The marriage of Communism and Fascism is more complete. The conglomeration of those two ideologies with Neo-Feudalism and Technocracy is closer to the mark. Professor James Lindsay as of late calls this: “Maoism with American characteristics.”¹

What can be rightly noted, without those labels becoming the argument, is that no one in the world with a desire for free will, and some understanding about Totalitarian regimes obsessive need to control a person’s work, their property, their movements, their familial relationships, and most of all, their tongue, should mistake this current trajectory as better for Humanity. Yet, “leaders” are marching us headlong into this abyss, as if, by command.

This Agenda serves people that do not care one iota about anyone. These parasitic people are persons we see at places like the World Economic Forum and those that hide well inside the shadow banking and governance entities. Their power message is expressed through media-trained lackeys, top-tier politicians and across the various sectors of health, technology, banking, agriculture, to other corporate and policy bodies that are populated and liberally cross-pollinated (or membered) to achieve a singular message akin to The Borg.²

Their messaging hides behind problems with climate and humanity using resources too haphazardly. The climate issue has been routinely used as a fear tool and is well-funded by these Globalized Parasites (GP), using activist groups that are brainwashed or indoctrinated to carry out the GP's orders. If people are to be truly concerned about resources squandered, look no further than these financial thieves and their long cons against their populations. Their hustles on electric cars using cobalt and lithium coming from the third world places³, and polluting those countries while debt entrapping them, makes a compelling argument for why one should take their words and throw them into the dustbin, or the lithium mine, of history. The answers to such climate and resource problems do not come from people that routinely fly around the world preaching this climate gospel while spending mountains of cash to be kept in the best hotels with the best cuisines. Or investment bankers that see only returns of cash from their craven exploitation of politically-driven policy that they do not have to experience. This is NIMBY, full stop.⁴

Much like the Feudal Kings and Lords, the purpose of these fears and crises is not to solve them; rather, it is to exploit them for further enhancement of power and wealth. The common folk are made to fear and told they must do their part, sacrifice to defeat the King's chosen foe. People then become distracted and confused by the King's proclamations and purse strings opened to show the King's good intent, but those are enticing tricks of the powerful. Give the population big worries and tell them whatever is needed – to defeat the grave enemy (whether it is their next-door neighbor, an unseen virus, or a climate catastrophe) – and find the right people, experts, scientists, educators or media manipulators to sell them this Big Lie.

The power of media (IA) has evolved since Gutenberg first broke the monopoly on information (and its dirty royal cousin disinformation). Through the Renaissance, to the Age of Enlightenment, the people became literate and could, for a price, put their thoughts to paper for the Masses. By the cusp of the American Revolution, up to 90% of the public in the Colonies were able to read. 1776's Common Sense was a massive political best seller in the new United States. But as with any medium (and thus, "media"), power-hungry forces congealed to control the print industry, namely, Hearst and Pulitzer.⁵ Further along the course of history, these powerful forces (now named Bloomberg, BlackRock or Vanguard⁶) bought out print, radio, then TV, and finally, social media. The well-financed parasites have hijacked information, employed thousands of government agents and "experts", forming disinformation networks (GEC), knowing full well what they desire people to know.^{7,8}

One of the 20th century masters of print, William L. Shirer, wrote The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich. In Rise's foreword, Shirer discussed the breath of time between tumultuous events and writing on it, noting the French viewpoint on enormous 19th century events:

“[T] his view [is] especially prevalent in France...Nothing more recent than the Napoleonic era, I was told, should be tackled by writers of history.

Most historians have waited fifty years or a hundred, or more, before attempting to write an account of a country, an empire, an era. But was this not principally because it took that long for the pertinent documents to come to light and furnish them with authentic material they needed? And though perspective was gained, was not something lost because the authors necessarily lacked a personal acquaintance with the life and the atmosphere of the times and with the historical figures about which they wrote?”⁹

Shirer noted as well that with the massive trove of documents, the luck of capture of them (in the entirety), it was obvious to him to do what he did: write a masterpiece on this dark point in humanity’s history.

Shirer intentionally noted his method; which one hopes to mimic and approach to some duplication: “...in this book I have tried to be severely objective, letting the facts speak for themselves and noting the source for each. No incidents, scenes or quotations stem from the imagination; all are based on documents, the testimony of eyewitnesses or my own personal observation.”

When speculation is engaged, he (and I) noted that. Interpretations, yet again, are not without an avenue for dispute. And to quote Shirer, yet again, one comes at this work with “what knowledge and experience I have had.” And it may take many more years and “drops” of information to provide the deeper breath and scope of the lies, cons, and corruption.

As for intelligent speculation, it is one’s contention that the current set of events is even more Earth-shaking and pronounced in its reach than World War II is and was. While the “defeat” of Nazism was commendable and absolutely necessary, this achievement was not all-encompassing. Embers of that false Reich later landed in the United States.¹⁰ Eugenics never went away either; rather, this racial-mental philosophy hid behind “rights” movements, healthcare and legal precedents (Roe v. Wade).

The more pertinent achievement of World War II was the development of world bodies that desire even greater control than their 20th century hyper-nationalistic counterparts. That nationalism was driven by a force, a cult of personality, and political ideologies birthed in the century prior, Communism and Fascism, and wielded by the likes of Hitler, Stalin, Mao, Tōjō, Mussolini, and Franco. Not to ignore attempts in France and United States to adopt socialistic-driven ideas, or the lack of certain countries' major involvement in WWII, that are now specifically important in the present: Brazil, Australia, Saudi Arabia and India.

The world today has inferior, personality-lacking leaders – Von der Leyen, Sunak, Macron, Stoltz, Putin, Trudeau, Jinping, Ardern, Lula, Modi, Biden – but these figureheads lead deeper benches of would-be autocrats (technocratic minions); and with larger non-governmental entities and those global bodies (UN, WEF, WHO, BIS and rising organizations with world-dominating ambitions (BRICS+)) collaborating visibly and subverting the nation-states of these dull and demented dictators. The nation-state is to be subsumed into a global village through whatever means gets the most compliance from the people quickest.

The global reach of this still burgeoning, international-flavored 4th Reich, this time, is not done through force of military per se; rather it is done through military-grade mass media propaganda, economic warfare, Agency-NGO warfare outfits and governments pointing their fingers inward at their populations instead of outward at the usual totalitarian's enemy of choice: other populations or leaderships. The political forces gladly outsource their policemen to other localities (so as to squelch resistance) through brazen brutality because there is zero connection or allegiance to the local populations. Police are useful, "following orders" idiots for their paychecks; and some enjoy violence on the random stranger (and were recruited specifically for that reason).

The Globalized Parasites (GP) learned lessons well from the two World Wars and the intervening proxy wars, providing opportunities to improve warfare tactics and apply them to civilians. Now, with algorithms and Artificial Intelligence (AI), the drivers of military-guided activities are based on the boiling-of-the-frogs' responses to the stimuluses provided for various pots of people. Those frogs are us: the common population.

Add-in divide-n-rule and invisible enemies to this slow boil mechanism, the demoralizing and destabilizing of Western nations, the main goal, and throw in urged mass migration, forced energy reduction, consumer restrictions, and social engineering at a level never seen across all of humanity, and this exceeds the plans of the 3rd iteration of a Reich.

Ultimately as well: substantial population reduction is a couched goal and its mechanisms for success are already bearing fruit.

This is a 5th generation warfare, and its itinerant and evolving features are being perfected through learning how people respond to it.¹¹

The echoes: a German-born and speaking guy has bragged about penetrating the cabinets of governments. Klaus Schwab was born in 1938 into the heart of the penetrating actions that was the rising totalitarian 3rd Reich. Schwab's father, Eugene Wilhelm, was highly connected to the Nazis, if only due to his managing a machining operation on the border of "neutral country": Switzerland.¹²

One of his penetrated cabinet members, finance minister Chrystia Freeland has her Nazi family past. Her boss, Justin Trudeau, has a family history intersecting with Fidel Castro. A marriage of Fascism and Communist ideas in Canada? But back to our to cult-like character.

Klaus is not the clear, final boss. Much akin to Adolf Hitler, who was well supported by major industrial titans, it is, as always, about the financiers. The bag of debt hanging over the Western World has the moneyed folks seeking a way out through a final, dominating digital world. Take digital identity and money (CBDC) and tie it to 24-7 surveillance of health, movement and social media and further create a new Ponzi-Madoff-Fried Scheme off genetics cum AI/Transhumanism. Globalist Parasites reimagine the world with All The Rights of Man under one global scoring system, their scoring system at a AI-driven pathos or narcissist's whimsical keystroke sitting half-a-world away.

This explains the eager cooperating with the decade-long prototyping by the Chinese Communist Party (CCP). The virtual prison yard of social control on a billion plus that American tech companies Google and Microsoft gladly assisted along in the 2010s.¹³ Bill Gates, a friendly Sinophile and Klaus chum, captured the WHO's agenda with heavy financing, picked off agricultural interests as well, tested vaccines on huge populations in Africa, India, and now, through his friends in the NIH (Fauci) and most of the Western countries as well. Gates brags about vaccines' return on investment. And he is not the only braggart among the GP crowd.

Behind Klaus Schwab lay royal ties – King Charles III – that have their designs to maintain great financial power despite the egregious losses of the once mighty British Empire since 1776. Others landing in this financial hopper are tied to the central banks around the world. Those that control the printing of money and can routinely make decisions that no one ever voted on, should be a final indicator of who runs us frogs and why these souls are never very visible and never answerable for their decisions. (Central Banks with opaque ownerships and sinister designs; unless one thinks 100% control is a good thing in the hands of people barely known, like: Augustin Carstens.¹⁴)

This work could not be achieved without the 100s and now 1000s of independent common people that have notice keenly this labeled and re-labeled 2030/49 Agenda and took great notice. These people faced the smears, called conspiracy theorists, for pointing to the documents of the GP. They faced the 5th gen warfare from all the apparatuses of governments, NGOs, gild organizations, and the most favorite arm: the 4th Estate, the Billionaire Globalist Media.

More exasperating, a substantial part of the common population chose to bury their heads in the sand and ignore published reports and overt and well-timed media appearances to pitch either: Build Back Better or The Great Reset. Such propaganda has a particular rhythm and phraseology for the Masses to swallow. This too echoes the 3rd Reich and Stalin's USSR. (Again, the totalitarian marriage is not by accident.)

Luckily, those 1000s in the quest to inform and educate on these sinister plans have been resilient and peaceful, despite threats and cancelling of their social existence for speaking out. As always, one side is held to an perfection standard. And by side, one contends, the side speaking truth, facts, and warning of the agendas to come, not the amorphous political party we are encouraged gleefully to join for divide-n-rule purposes.

This while the GP media, a most craven group of liars, cons, and criminals in their complete dereliction of "journalism" will be the ones, like Goebbels taught well, to judge anyone that commit "thought and speech crimes" as dangerous to "democracy." When such media operates at the behest of State Power, and given how many former U.S. spokesmen and women from intel to the White House rotate easily to ABC, NBC, CBS, CNN, FOX, MSNBC, one should be highly alarmed. When the State creates Disinformation boards, or funds NGOs and Universities to do tasks to circumvent the Bill of Rights, both the State and those that operating on itself behalf, have committed crimes against the entire population.^{15,16} (The PATRIOT Act opened the door broadly for such abuses and nothing was done about it. This has metastasized, as Julian Assange noted, and now, the RESTRICT Act is being teed up.¹⁷)

But this movement hopes to awaken the Mass Formed to the nature of the militarized COVID propaganda used expertly against them. But this information work is still not fully finished nor is it easily done without enormous sacrifices.

The time is running very short to stop this agenda worldwide.

Since I began work on this project, in late spring 2020, one has worked temporary warehouse jobs for BlackRock companies (Amazon, UPS), tutored, and worked late shifts at a convenience store. One set aside their hopes of going back to a ‘new normal’ of being a mediocre industrial engineer with background issues.^{18,19} I went from a good ‘credit’ score to default judgments on credit cards from the big banks (Bank of America, Citigroup, et. al) to get through the morass that was the agenda tied to SARS-COV-2. One will contend this decision was a worthwhile sacrifice.

For in the long run, we all die without a penny to take with us, and debts are merely the slave tool of the usury class foisted upon Humanity. When governments bear no responsibility for their recklessness with the purse, how does one deem it worth the trouble to adhere to contracts? Force Majeure took place in March 2020 across the Western World.²⁰ Everything since was a conman’s dream. And trillions were printed and tossed on the bonfire consuming your inalienable rights.

One also hopes an axiom can be born from this: the measure of the journalist is inversely proportional to their wealth and weekly paycheck from 3-5 letter media outlets with plutocratic billionaires in charge. It is what one does without assured reward, that challenges the powerful and corrupt, that sees people, presently, as just bits of error-filled DNA to be exploited for the next market to monopolize.²¹ This separates the real journalist from the well-fed, seven-figure frauds.

Along the way as well, I discovered friends in the search for answers. Some were for a reason; others for a season; and hopefully, some are for the remainder of my time on this planet. Some hold PhDs; others are politically-connected; others still are just the common man or woman trying to do a 9-5, or 11-7, while holding their families together.

Hold their families. That ultimately has to be the goal of anyone with morality and understanding of what is at stake and stops listening to the media of the monsters that did this all for their own “reasons.”

What those reasons are depends on the individual and proximity to the nexus of a host of characters. Nonetheless, they do have their reasons. They will tell us this with a practiced concerned look, a subtle flash of baleful eyes and the psychopathic duper's delight, and a lie about how this is for, "one's own good."

As Margaret Anna Alice of Substack wrote, poetically, and truthfully:

"You know in your heart what is true, and you speak it.
And no one can ever shut you up again.
Even if they kill you.
Your bravery will outlive you."²²

Lastly, this 6th edition is a major revamp of all prior publications. In most cases, I have used Archive.org or Archive.ph because we live in extraordinary times. There is an extreme desire to control all information. The citations will point to a reliable source when not discussed in the main body.

This is Volume One.

Ahead lay the history (and potential futures) of Operation Virus.

This book never would be possible without the multitudes of persons met often through no more than a Twitter feed, a Discord Server, a Rumble, or a Substack. In the course of research and rethinking of events, people came into one's orbit that provided incredible insights, resources, and a forum for all things, book and non-book related. Some are well-met; others just a comment, review, or a presence that made this easier to continue daily.

Many thanks to all of them.

PART 1:
Geopolitical Agenda

One World Order Agenda

“We know where we want to end up: success. We want to matter. Wealth and recognition and reputation are nice too. We want it all...This is the thinking that creates the Faustian bargain that turns most clean ambition into shameless addiction...because no one ever said, reflecting on the whole of someone’s life, ‘Man, the monstrous ego was worth it.’” – Ego Is the Enemy, Ryan Holiday

The Great Reset is about the controlled collapse of post-World War II monetary, political and social systems and their replacement with Totalitarian systems, with similarities but for their geographic operating centers, and from which they will be no conceivable escape by the local populations. The financial aspects of the prior Bretton Woods-driven World Order are cracking from enormous debt loads worldwide, at over $320 trillion, derivatives estimated over $1.5 quadrillion (notional estimate), and long-term liabilities incalculable across all 194 countries, but hazard they are on the magnitude of a quadrillion plus.

The political fractures – the cold war ending – first took place in 1991, as the Berlin Wall fell. The Great Game 2.0 launched, thereafter, but with a new wrinkle: China rising off the backs of Americans too busy to notice, too propagandized to admonish their corrupted political class (or cheated at the ballot box), and too distracted by technology, from the internet to iPhones. Geopolitics took a backburner to Google and Grinder.

The social realities are the most jarring, if one believes in meritocracy, minimizing internal strife, and operating from classic Western moorings tied to a God, a family, and fair treatment and respect of traditions laid since the Magna Carta and through to the U.S. Constitution. The “hypocrisy class,” that is Washington, D.C., has made war its sole overarching agenda, guided by their elder British cousin’s antipathies while preaching “democracy” and a “rules-based order” is its overarching foreign policy goal. But such traditions and policies are destined for death as failed promises aplenty are made by these agenda operators in the next World Order forming quickly before our eyes. There are many faces to this, thousands actually, that have been trained, conditioned, and bred to rule over the Masses. They see Humanity much as the ancients did: pliable and useful slaves that must be completely controlled.

The birthing of such an agenda rarely begins in a glitzy conference room or a Swiss Alps retreat. Rather, it begins in a school, or a factory, or a bar, or a dormitory, or even a graduate course taught by an awe-inspiring lecturer that produces that final trigger of inspiration. The student soaks in all the personal thoughts of his university mentor, his Plato, that goes along with a host of preconceived notions and upbringing that has excited the mind to think of global possibilities: that with just the right amount of effort, manipulation, and congealing of acolytes into an organization to carry out the deeper, more penetrating task for the invisible hands, that ultimately finance this collective control aspiration, that no one person can ever stop – not even a U.S. President.

This might be a fitting description of what Klaus Schwab is or became after attending lectures hosted by his mentor, Henry Kissinger, at Harvard.²³ Schwab’s growth thereafter from merely a professional engineer to the leader of the European Economic Forum might be seen as a substantial achievement. But for one that saw his mentor rise to U.S. Secretary of State in the Nixon administration, and go to China immediately after ping-pong diplomacy^{24,25}, the desire to exceed the master likely grew, happily.

With Kissinger’s trek, the mission was to sway Mao permanently away from the orbit of USSR with democratizing and globalizing Capitalism. As this was later initiated, upon new leadership in both the United States and China, Schwab’s own ambitions must have been stoked even further from the observance of his Plato’s ascension into the pantheon of geopolitical history. The intervening years since China opened to the West (with zero democracy changes) shows Klaus inviting Kissinger to his World Economic Forum (WEF) and recounting a similar origin story starting from Klaus's Harvard interactions with Kissinger.

As a student of history and engineering, Klaus also more than knew about the potentiality of rising from obscurity to the leadership of an energetic group of people. Klaus's birth in Ravensburg, Germany was just fifteen years after Adolf Hitler's Beer Hall Putsch; and like Hitler, Klaus's origin story included less German, with more Swiss and Austrian touches, but never let a confusing starting point deter from one's deeply-held desires. For Hitler, it was fanatical nationalistic reunification of Germany and Austria (sans the ethnic populace) and revenge against Jews and others Hitler deemed unworthy; for Klaus, it is fanatical global public-private partnerships, Fascism, at a scale hitherto unachieved, and humanity's transitioning, after its downsizing through a war-like, Maoist identity politics attrition, towards a Klausian dream of Transhumanism. Klaus's World Economic Forum promoted, slickly, no property ownership: an absolute Communist tenet as well.²⁶

Unlike Hitler, Klaus learned violent pushes, the old types of war, are little tolerated in a hypermedia environment, both as he likely experienced in the 1970s; and later, Klaus deployed the media, more properly, to gather those corporate allies. Growing up in Cold War Europe, radicalism was heavily highlighted in media whenever it included any of the Nazi tenets. Klaus, and his future World Economic Forum, instead worked at talent development in media, presentation, narrative building, and catastrophizing of any global issue to a workable end for power attainment. The workable end – more control through his forum – came through more asymmetric warfare-like techniques. Or as James Lindsay pointed well to, “a middle-level violence,” that make it difficult to respond to without losing moral authority.²⁷

Instead of excited rhetoric that blamed Jews for all of the Germany's ills, or persuasive propaganda that spoke of the great Germany Adolf could, or would achieve, with expansive totalitarian powers, Klaus's talks in grand narratives about a transhumanistic and a fully equitable world if given the proper collaborations between multinational corporations (MNC) and institutions inside of state governments that can achieve more than any leader of any nation ever will again.

But sovereignty is to be abolished on a national level with this. Thus, nationalism is demonized; culture atomized and monolithic to the whimsies of the rich and powerful; personal boundaries and thoughts sanitized by information agents (IA). All to build towards a singular sovereign of the World, a (UN-WEF-CCP) collaboration that will reach down to the local populations through controlled bodies (NGOs, Foundations, Think Tanks, and Military). These will use AI, drones, internet technology, and surveillance, still developing, and growing more intrusive and pernicious daily.

It is not that the end objective is any different from Hitler's; just the approach to it is a much more, so-called, enlightened dictatorial imperative, done with softer persuasion techniques, towards a Utopian Technocracy arising at the end of these Fascist financial partnerships. Klaus's World Economic Forum forges these from a Davos, Switzerland ski-sloped, winter retreat. Economics, not bombs, do the needed damage, both direct, and collateral, to those that do not agree with this top-down subversion of humanity towards total automation, identity and resource control.

In many respects, this pulls too from the Chinese Communist gameplan for all humanity, but particularly for: the United States.²⁸ Subvert and destroy freedoms, particularly religion, speech, arms, and due process, and label quickly anyone that protests against this. By catastrophe and coercion, the goal is to create a compelling fiction that U.S. is solely bad guy.

(This is but half right: D.C. governmental agencies have accrued a level of mendacious and malevolence to be rightly responsible for problems worldwide. Except, these folks never do anything without various players, China, paralleling the same destructive and entrapping actions. The two largest economies have such thuggery down to "a science.")

The peoples of both countries are subverted and subservient to their governments. In China, there is 1.3 billion peasants with a ruling class of 5,000 senior CCP members and 96 million reporting Party members. In the U.S., there is approximately 130 million working class laborers with a government class of 21 million reporting to their top political, agency, and Wall Street class personnel that align with the CCP on most things.

If only these peoples were willing to sacrifice for the future of Humanity and break the onerous shackles of mind, of body, and of spirit.)

A notable parallel here, Hitler's nine month stay in prison was in excellent accommodations to dictate his Mein Kampf drivel, as Shirer noted:

"Such were the ideas of Adolf Hitler, set down in all their appalling crudeness as he sat in Landsberg prison gazing out at a flowering orchard above the River Lech, or later, in 1925-26, as he reclined on the balcony of a comfortable inn at Berchtesgaden and looked out across the towering Alps toward his native Austria...he would build on the shoddy foundations we have seen, and which he would rule with an iron hand. That one day he would build it and rule it he had no doubts whatsoever, for he was possessed of that burning sense...

A crude Darwinism? A sadistic fancy? An irresponsible egoism? A megalomania? It was all of these in part. But it was something more (90)."²⁹

Adolf, according to Shirer's great work, noted three things worked in politics for the German Social Democrats: create a mass movement; the art of propaganda; the art of "spiritual and physical terror (Shirer, 22)."³⁰ Shirer focused on the last one as the faulty analysis derived from the racist prejudices of Hitler that spilled forth from Mein Kampf.

This three-pronged political observation came about in the early 1910s. This likely developed from the psychological mastery (such as it was then) in the hacking of the human mind's id, ego and superego. Sigmund Freud, a Vienna-based practitioner, could of theoretically ran across a young, "bohemian" Adolf as he too was in Vienna (Shirer, 19-21). Freud was then at the beating heart of the burgeoning psychiatric profession.³¹

Meanwhile, Sigmund's nephew provided the consumeristic pulse of media propaganda in the United States. Edward Bernays, worked for Wilson's War Department³²; attended the Versailles Peace Conference; wrote the book, Propaganda (1928); and was very popular with Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's Minister of Propaganda for the 3rd Reich. Later, Bernays did more off-the-books work for the newly-formed CIA.

Bernays wrote in Propaganda: "Propaganda is the executive arm of the invisible government,"^{33,34}; and this more pronounced and directed result of Bernays thinking, paraphrasing from The Century of the Self (2000): "If Propaganda can be used for war, it can be used for peace (8:00)."^{35, 36}

Such provided the background grist for which Hitler, if he was even aware of Bernays or Freud in the 1910s, could hack about in his later incoherent rhetoric and long-winded musings. Certainly, Paul Joseph Goebbels had post-hoc conversations that reinforced what Hitler thought and described in Mein Kampf after Goebbels came fully into the Nazi fold, as its main messaging component, by mid-1926 (Shirer, 123).³⁷

Goebbels was intellectually trained in ways that should have been off-putting to the coarse and scatterbrained future Nazi leader in Adolf. However, this was not the case. Nor was Goebbels instantly lovestruck with Nazism. But during the 1925-26 timeframe, that gradually turned around and later cemented into place for the duration of Joseph's life.

In Shirer's words, "The diary of Goebbels is full of expressions of sympathy for Communism at this time (126)."³⁸ And, "on January 31,

1926, he told himself in his diary: “I think it is terrible that we [the Nazis] and the Communists are bashing in each other’s heads...” Goebbels would attempt détente with the communists in an open letter penned in this timeframe along with attacks on the “nobles” possession of German wealth. Meanwhile, Hitler’s Party was financed greatly by those very nobles, or their industries, that Goebbels proposed to nationalize (126-27).³⁹ Nevertheless, by that early spring, after various confabs with the ever-persistent and long-winded Hitler, Dr. Goebbels, was wooed to the cloth of Nazism, in perpetuity, happily or not (128-29).⁴⁰

With the terrorizing of the mind and body affirmed into the Nazi playbook, Hitler was particularly interested in taking down the bourgeoisie through lies and slander, even as he exploited them financially for his own benefit almost from the outset of the party’s formation; and using the mass movement point above to physically terrorize any would-be opponents, particularly the communists.

His would-be obsessive and ideologically adjacent offspring, Klaus, certainly uses emotion with a harsh accent that has little warmth and focuses on terrorizing by the use of climate change promotion towards his Great Reset. Klaus’s WEF organization promotes an unhealthy control of media narratives and never gives any avenue for questions of his non-governmental role, except by the adoring and well-coached journalistic supporters, particularly originating from CGTN in China.

An overlay of Maoist principles, identity politics, additionally spring to the fore, when the WEF routinely call for “equity” while censoring people that do not agree with one’s agenda. During the cultural revolution, under the last days of Mao (1966-1976), categorizing people as “red” or “black”, with five identities each, created the pot for 2 million to be publicly humiliated and then killed as well.⁴¹ The “blacks identities” were the oppressors, and targeted by the “reds” in this cultural revolution.⁴²⁻⁴³ These are⁴⁴:

- Landlords (dìzhǔ)
- Rich farmers (fùnóng)
- Counter-revolutionaries (fǎngémìng)
- Bad influencers (huàifēnzǐ)
- Right-wingers (yòupài)

As one set of quotes further this unified thesis, had from a July 2020 Building Back Better document on Media, Entertainment and Culture Industry, this paper posed that controlling messaging through demonetization, emotion, and using the Pandemic to install equity is needed as the response from this absolutely crucial industry to control:

“We examined the demonetization of harmful content through initiatives such as the Global Alliance for Responsible Media (GARM), in partnership with the Forum’s ‘Shaping the Future of Media, Entertainment and Culture’ platform... (3)

Responsible leadership is a critical enabler of sustainable governance. Top leaders exhibit five elements of responsible leadership: 1) stakeholder inclusion; 2) emotion and intuition; 3) mission and purpose; 4) technology and innovation; and 5) intellect and insight... (4)

The pandemic precipitated ‘three years of transformation in three months’. It presented both an imperative to respond and an opportunity to change, to build back better. It provided an opportunity to revisit long-held assumptions, to rebuild, redesign and reprioritize to create a more trusted, prosperous, resilient and equitable industry (5).”⁴⁵

One should look askance at this unaccountable world body designing up a censorship environment; based on emotion as a key pillar in leadership; and slickly offering transformation that references equitable (in the eyes of which beholder?), that will not be by any transparent process. Rather, it is decided by its worthiness (by a WEF selection) to be an installed leader, a controlled technocrat. And more worrisome: abuses out of such a selection system supporting WEF-appropriate narratives, emotions and equity-defined processes are unquestioned, much like all dictatorships operate. Such Maoism, with Fascistic characteristics, introduced the world to Klaus Schwab’s WEF messaging, full-on. The public-private authoritarian regime of China is lauded as well as the ideal model to mimic. (And many Globalists parrot that line of thinking from Thomas Friedman to Justin Trudeau through to Joe Biden.)

For many years, the WEF Young Leaders were prepped, penetrating positions of power in nation-states and some 450 cities worldwide.⁴⁶ The UN as well partnered with the WEF in the summer of 2019 to move along their Agenda 2030.⁴⁷ Such infiltration to steer policy, at a whim, when the time was ripe. That ripening time came in 2020, as the book: COVID-19: The Great Reset, was released not unlike the virus itself. This to introduce all to the wonderful world the Global Parasitic Elites want for themselves with a few billion slaves or serfs under their thumb permanently.

More importantly, the number of corporations ranging across all sectors of industry (automotive, banking, electronics, health & pharma, to social media), countries (China, Saudi Arabia, United States, et.al) and cities and leaderships should be cause for alarm. As of 2023, this alarm is more clearly the case. Above gives scope and a few faces of this WEF Agenda.

From the WEF Global Shapers 2020-21 Annual Report:

“In August 2020, 2,500 inspiring young leaders participated in the first-ever virtual Global Shapers Annual Summit to inspire, support and scale collective action. Members enrolled in a five-day programme featuring plenary sessions with leading experts including Al Gore, Ellyn Shook, Yo-Yo Ma and Lindiwe Mazibuko, along with community activities to build relationships and workshops to share best practices and plan projects.”⁴⁸ [My emphasis.]

Hitler’s Beer Hall Putsch happened on November 8, 1923. Now nearly a century ago. Hitler fired a pistol during that failed coup night, a false start that led to his incarceration and publication of his prison scribbles in Mein Kampf (My Struggle). The atmosphere that gave him even the remotest inkling of a chance to start this revolution lay in the five years prior.

On November 11, 1918, Germany formally surrendered and soon faced the onerous, if seemingly warranted, Versailles Treaty dictates. It was only a short while before those dictates – financial reparations in hard collateral, gold marks (Shirer, 58), and restrictions on any militarization – both hamstrung the economy and wounded the German pride of the military warriors that came home defeated, and betrayed, in their views.

(Some have offered that Germany never fulfilled any of those reparations. But even the perception that they did had its economic impacts, hyperinflation as we will see.)

The Weimar Republic was a disastrous failure and extremism grows from government corruption, weakness, and ineptitude in handling the peoples' rights and economic concerns. Weimar had this from its start. Versailles was the main focus of the Germans; Shirer reminded that:

“German memories did not appear to stretch back as far as one year, to March 3, 1918, when the victorious German Supreme Command had imposed on a defeated Russia at Brest Litovsk a peace treaty...[that] deprived Russia of a territory nearly as large as Austria-Hungary and Turkey combined, with 56,000,000 inhabitants...a third of her railway mileage, 73 percent of her iron ore, 89 percent of her total coal production...moreover, Russia was obliged to pay Germany an indemnity of six billion marks (57).”⁴⁹

The Weimar Republic that agreed to Versailles soon violated the military side of the agreement while also meting out justice unevenly from Shirer's recounting of treason charges aimed at political adversaries on the Left that fueled Hitler's ambitions knowing consequences were minimal for extreme attempts (Shirer, 60).⁵⁰

Likewise, the German mark fell like a stone over the course of 1921-1923. From 75 to a U.S. dollar in 1921, to 400 in 1922, it started 1923 at 7,000. This currency collapse paired with the French occupation of Germany's Ruhr, their industrial epicenter, and home to most of Germany's coal production. Non-violent strikes were supported by the Berlin government; others however went the sabotage route with other methods that the France decided were unacceptable, and countered with a range of options from arrests to death sentences. More spectacularly, the freefall of the currency to 4,000,000,000 marks to the dollar by November 1923 was the defining backdrop on which Hitler saw as a German crisis becoming his golden opportunity (Shirer, 61).⁵¹

Adolf's opportunity was nixed barely out of the womb, failing in a night. However, a more familiar group benefited handsomely as Shirer reflects:

“The inflation could have been halted by merely balancing the budget – a difficult but not an impossible feat. Adequate taxation might have achieved this...Instead of drastically raising taxes on those who could pay, the republican government actually reduced them in 1921.

From then on, goaded by the big industrialists and landlords, who stood to gain though the masses of the people were financially ruined, the government deliberately let the mark tumble in order to free the State of its public debts, to escape from paying reparations...Moreover, the destruction of currency enabled German heavy industry to wipe out its indebtedness by refunding its obligations in worthless marks...

The masses of the people, however, did not realize how much the industrial tycoons, the Army and the State were benefiting from the ruin of the currency (Shirer, 61-62).⁵²

[Note: Shirer's lack of understanding of taxes, and the escape of them by the wealthiest, who could actually pay them, should be observed. The ability to raise taxes and cut spending at the same time is not even in the basket of delusional abilities of 21st century technocrats in D.C.

Though these administrators, from Congress to Treasury, routinely hustle the public on their technological expertise and abilities to do such things together. But, as of the last twenty years, the idea of balancing budgets, as will be shown by U.S. national debt (much further below), does not even enter the worldview of modern technocrats with their Modern Monetary Theory (MMT). Some contend, rightly, there is no error, rather: the intention is to break the U.S. monetary system – and destroy the United States dollar as the world currency of settlement.^{53]}

To put meat on the bones of Shirer's contentions, renowned author in his own right, Antony Sutton, wrote voluminously in his lifetime about the Soviets and the Nazis and the financial manipulations coming from Wall Street to Washington to London. In the work, Wall Street and FDR (1975), Chapter 3, Sutton provided the names, plots and organizations that drove the Weimar Republic towards the brutal genocidal hands of a WWI corporal with a hatred of capitalism, and the kleptocrats, alike.

Sutton discussed (31-41) the 1918-23 Weimar crisis and the financial benefactors of this regime problem:

“Reparations have an effect on the balance of payments similar to imports. They require either taxation or deficit spending to offset the drain. If the course of deficit spending is followed, the result will be inflationary, and this was the course followed in Germany.

Germany was obligated by the Allies to make recompense for all damage to private property, except in Russia and to pay all costs of Allied troops on German soil, but no maximum limit was set on the demands. Germany had forthwith to surrender 100 billion gold marks, with payments of one billion gold marks annually after 1921. The final payments plan worked out at the ‘London Ultimatum’ in May 1921 reflected these harsh and impossible terms and so provided a clear incentive to inflate to remove the burden of direct payments...

The so-called experts...Owen D. Young of the General Electric Company. J.P. Morgan, with Thomas N. Perkins and Thomas Lamont as alternates.

Worthy of note that businessman on the German side...were...in November 1918 a group of the Reich's most prominent businessmen, comprising Stinnes, Albert Voegler (then director of the Gelsenkirchen Mining Co., Ltd.), Carl Friedrich von Siemens, Felix Deutsche (of German General Electric), Director Mankiewitz of the Deutsche Bank, and Director Salomonsohn, of the Diskontogesellschaft, financed the movement of a Hitler forerunner...

The pertinent point is that the Felix Deutsche mentioned was a director of German General Electric and the American reparations representatives included Owen D. Young of General Electric [as well].

The policies that led to the ruinous German inflation were initiated under Chancellor Wilhelm Cuno, who was, immediately prior to becoming Chancellor, the president of Hamburg-America Line (HAPAG). Two of Cuno's co directors at HAPAG were Max Warburg, Hamburg banker and brother of Paul Warburg, member of the Federal Reserve System Advisory Board in the United States, and John von Berenberg Gossler, a member of the German advisory board of Franklin D. Roosevelt's United European Investors, Ltd.[UEI]

Cuno was dismissed as German Chancellor in August 1923...Cuno came from a business circle that was able and willing to take pecuniary and personal advantage of the German inflation.

...the ultimate collapse of the German mark in 1923 ruined the German middle class and benefited three groups: a few German big businessmen, a few foreign businessmen who were in a position to gain advantage from the inflation, and the rising Hitler movement. As president of United European Investors, Ltd., Franklin D. Roosevelt was among those foreign businessmen who took advantage of Germany's misery for their own gain.

In...Wall Street and the Bolshevik Revolution, we identified personal links between Wall Street financiers and Bolshevik revolutionaries...The precisely established links previously implicated the then German Ambassador to the United States, Count von Bernstorff, and his friend Adolph von Pavenstedt, senior partner in Amsinck & Co., who was 'for many years a chief paymaster of the German spy system in this country.' Amsinck & Co. was controlled by the J.P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller, and other New York financial interests through American International Corporation.

[Moreover] Adolph von Pavenstedt and Edmund Pavenstedt...were also members of another financial house, Müller, Schall & Company. And it is at Müller, Schall that in 1922 we find Franklin D. Roosevelt at his [UEI] United European Investors, Ltd.

[Notable: Pavenstedts likely competed with the Roosevelts in Puerto Rican sugar properties, as Sutton keenly surmises, based on both families interest held in Caribbean sugar companies.]”⁵⁴ [My emphasis added.]

Sutton reflected on UEI’s stock ownership details, correspondence, maneuvers, and later, the cash out of FDR in May 1926. There were early investigations on the shady dealings of UEI, particularly its involvement with the “Roberts–Gould element (39)”⁵⁵; and FDR was made aware of this by July 29, 1922 through his key advisor then: Louis Howe. Correspondences by Gould to FDR pointed out that the “jealous bankers whose scheme we hurt, and whose plans were upset. Had we not issued today we would have failed (40).”⁵⁶ To be fair, as Sutton is, FDR was just a name attached to draw in investors to the scheme; not a “master mind (41)” as Gould described FDR to butter up his more prestigious cohort. Both advantaged themselves off Germany’s inflationary misery through Cuno’s timely position as Chancellor, Cuno’s board seat at HAPAG coinciding with Gossler’s relationship to FDR’s UEI’s German operation.

In this historic review, one remembers the Spanish Flu of 1918 which took more lives than all of World War I.^{57,58} But the series of catastrophic events built the cauldron of chaos – Europe’s World War, 1918 Virus, Versailles Reparations, Weimar Inflation Spiral, German Social Unrest, USSR’s policies resulting in the Ukrainian Holodomor, Nazi and Communist Extremism, Failed Coup(s), Conflicting Ideologies, the Rise of Dictatorships Globally – that keeps the common population in a state of flux, instability, stress, and thirsty for any answers sans that of a war.

War is the unfortunate and devilish ploy of those malevolent enough, and financially backed to achieve its ends at the highest social price; and persuasive enough, to get a population to accept them as the only path left to them while under the extremist spell of Mass Formation. Bombarding a population with propaganda and disinformation – to define an enemy – while conveniently shifting all the State’s sins on to this defined enemy is done in the present day. (The United States government (and particularly, its Agencies), sadly have done this for decades through media outlets and supported NGOs, such as the National Endowment for Democracy, a CIA front-facing organization.⁵⁹)

History echoes well in many respects here. Similar events, but not the inevitable sequencing, or the crass Hitlerian word choices are clear enough. Heir apparent Klaus Schwab also “wrote” two books. COVID 19: The Great Reset and The Great Narrative exploited the crisis position to create the Davos Man opportunity that he and his acolytes parroted well since March 2020. This in concert with Xi Jinping’s avid promotion of the CCP lockdown desires made the former book quite a social engineering tell, released just three months after the pandemic began in the West and timed well with George Floyd’s death. These tombs spelled out disaster for Western values, particularly for the small business and non-technology, entrepreneurial classes.

Klaus Schwab and Thierry Malleret wrote in The Great Narrative:

“The pandemic was one such thing. Many international organizations and individuals had warned for years that a pandemic would occur but, despite this, it took most of the world by complete surprise. Now (December 2021), almost two years since it began, the pandemic seems never-ending and continues to drag on. We hope that the COVID-19 crisis will soon be over, but will it... Pandemics as a social and psychological phenomenon are not episodic: they linger for years. A historian of science and medicine puts it this way: ‘We are living in the COVID-19 era, not the COVID-19 crisis. There will be lots of changes that are substantial and persistent... We will be dealing with many of the ramifications of COVID-19 for decades.’ ”⁶⁰ [My emphasis added.]

Notice in this brief passage, the ability to reinforce the crisis, uncertainty, longevity, and emotional stress with tension-filled words. The repeating of pandemic or COVID-19 is not by accident. The historian cited references back to a New York Times article (by Gina Kolata) who quoted Allan Brandt, a Harvard University professor. The word choice: drag, linger, never-ending, warned, persistent, decades, give the impression of no hope can be had regarding this manufactured catastrophe.

And that is the emotional and psychological operations point.

Pandemics do not drag on for decades. The individual repercussions from those that died, no doubt, have such personal impacts, but wane considerably with time as with any grieving process. The small businesses shuttered (by design) are of course a uniquely felt problem as well here. But several pandemics have occurred since 1918, and those were orders of magnitude more deadly (deaths/world population at their outset); and handled far better by those populations, despite less technology, medicines, and preparedness. In other words: in spite of all our technological advancement, we allowed ourselves to be manipulated and maneuvered over a virus that was “engineered,” both cellularly and psychologically, for even greater impact on Humanity.

Jeffrey Tucker, a libertarian at the *Brownstone Institute*⁶¹, noted the 1968-69 H3N2 “Hong Kong Flu” caused none of the overblown responses. “That generation approached viruses with calm, rationality and intelligence. We left disease mitigation to medical professionals, individuals and families, rather than politics, politicians and government.”⁶²

But this pandemic was not about truth or the real intentions of Klaus Schwab’s Great Reset narrative. Schwab continued on into the next paragraph:

“Lessons from past pandemics...Among them are the acceleration of automation and innovation, rising inequalities, the growing power of tech and surveillance, the rising rivalry between the United States and China, the partial retreat from globalization, the economic paradigm shift, and an increasingly fractious geopolitical landscape.”⁶³

Notice only one of the above is neutral linguistically (innovation), while the remaining list is conflict-added for emotional impacts to the reader.

Klaus and colleagues deployed such high-level concepts, regarding massive changes, corporate-government cooperation while also destabilizing disliked populations (most humans) – those who are natives to a country and complained too much about Globalization’s ills, half-birthed in the 1970s by his mentor, Kissinger.⁶⁴ Klaus’s schtick bares some semblance to early 20th century corporate-socialists, namely, the writings of Brookings and Filene.⁶⁵

Change is not uniquely desired by all populations; and often it is the youngest (and most inexperienced) that are molded to think immediate change is needed by the intellectuals that have deeper agendas regarding maintaining or acquiring power. Many, typically older persons, in non-academic situations, are rather contented to slow progressions, and for good reasons. Their understanding acquired from parent’s stories, readings or impactful experiences on what happened in Germany from the Spring of 1918 to the Fall of 1923 (or later, the Eastern Bloc under the Soviets) play a fundamental part in that slow to change. That the Five-Year Weimar Unplan ushered in extremism across the Globe that undoubtedly fueled World War II is now worthy of review, yet again.

The wisdom of older adults knows something now is amiss. Even if they don’t always have the scientific or academic backgrounds to decipher the thrust behind it, they inherently feel the social, political and economic echoes of ginning up extremism rather well. Time in the world milieu provided a coarser education on the twists and turns of history. But it is education, nonetheless, and it is to be valued dearly.

Sutton in Wall Street and FDR foreshadowed the old-becomes-new hustle of corporations with their bureaucratic technocrats together: “the principles of corporate socialism are but a thin veneer for the acquisition of wealth by a few at the expense of the many (70).”⁶⁶ To understand how such men behind the curtain are made, one need only review the biographic sketch of Edward Filene provided by Sutton.

Filene, “served as chairman of the Metropolitan Planning Commission of Boston, promoter of people's banks, and provided assistance to various cooperative movements. Filene was active in the Red Cross and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce; a founder of the League to Enforce Peace; a founder and later president of the Cooperative League, subsequently renamed the Twentieth Century Fund; and a member of the Foreign Policy Association and the Council on Foreign Relations (70).”⁶⁷

Filene was an FDR acolyte, campaigner (prior to his death in 1937 at 77), and a writer of two notable books: The Way Out (1924) and Successful Living in this Machine Age (1932). Filene wrote (as Sutton cited), “the finest possible public service of businessmen is that rendered in and through the private businesses of the world (71).”⁶⁸ [My emphasis.]

Sutton nods to Kissinger – “the road to peace is the balance of power” argument— was a Fileneian adoption of a “19th-century formula (71)” that Sutton noted, even if Filene did not, leads to great chaos and world war.

This current iteration of the Globalist Parasitic plan is a technocratic, class-based, top-down desire to change the geopolitical and financial chess board for specific and special benefits to an elitist group, yet again. One of Klaus’s key acolytes, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, noted this in 2020: “This pandemic has provided an opportunity for a reset.”⁶⁹

The linguistic tells above echoed those of a more refined 21st century Hitler, as the political originations are now to the Left. (This too exploits the Left-Right political paradigm for divide-and-rule of populations across a host of decision vectors in people’s lives. Health decisions and racial appearances being the most operative since 2020 started. Much akin to the Nazis usage of those vectors in the 1930s, regarding health and hygiene laws and the Jewish, non-Aryan people as their target.

Identity politics firmly reestablished in America under Obama – and that was by design, a top-down sabotage of burgeoning political movements (Tea Party and Occupy Wall Street). Race, gender, sexuality, and handicaps are pushed from WEF-attached corporations like Anheuser-Busch InBev.^{70,71} Much like Mao, the ever-altering American vicissitudes of intersectionality, a victim points and virtue-signaling hierarchy of slivered out chaos has commoditized people into brands for sale; customers to carve up in hospitals before they leave their middle school years; and pandering, wine moms that do little thinking while their husbands or “sperm donors” are left either to submit to their Munchausen’s by proxy behaviors, or be fined, jailed, or censored for calling their once, easily identifiable offspring by their birth names, instead of whatever gets them the most clicks on TikTok, the Chinese app. Transgenderism and racism are the information agents daily push – especially with Biden’s executive orders tying funding to compliance with U.S policy regarding “conversion therapy” for other countries.⁷² This while conversion of boys and girls, who can’t be sure what they want, is promoted by the AMA and the APA as “gender-affirming care”⁷³, the same professional medical class that did so well in regards COVID-19 death impacts. [This is one’s analysis and opinion.]

Sutton ended his Genesis of Corporate Socialism chapter with an appropriate summary of what is the 2020s plight towards Agenda 2030. BlackRock’s Larry Fink has advocated for this idea since Wall Street’s craven antics (dissected in the movie, Inside Job (2010)) destroyed the housing market by 2007-8, but received a FED bailout thereafter:

“What was the philosophy of the financiers so far described? Certainly anything but laissez-faire competition, which was the last system they envisaged. Socialism, communism, fascism or their variants were acceptable. The ideal for these financiers was ‘cooperation,’ forced if necessary. Individualism was out, and competition was immoral. On the other hand, cooperation was consistently advocated as moral and worthy, and nowhere is compulsion rejected as immoral. Why? Because, when the verbiage is stripped away from the high-sounding phrases, compulsory cooperation was their golden road to a legal monopoly. Under the guise of public service, social objectives, and assorted do-goodism it is fundamentally ‘Let society go to work for Wall Street (72).’⁷⁴ [My emphasis.]

Again, this 100% corporate-government control path is but a merger of a host of ideological underpinnings: Fascism, Communism, Technocracy, and even, Atheism. Tellingly, Klaus eagerly promoted a 4th Industrial Revolution in a 2015 Foreign Affairs publication. In that article, Klaus buried the idea of Transhumanism subtly at the end:

“We need to shape a future that works for all of us by putting people first and empowering them. In its most pessimistic, dehumanized form, the Fourth Industrial Revolution may indeed have the potential to “robotize” humanity and thus to deprive us of our heart and soul. But as a complement to the best parts of human nature—creativity, empathy, stewardship—it can also lift humanity into a new collective and moral consciousness based on a shared sense of destiny. It is incumbent on us all to make sure the latter prevails.”⁷⁵

Echoes again of The Borg mentality and of 19th century philosophy.

Hitler's ideas, such as these were, came out of a cauldron of philosophic, paganistic, and racist stews brewing up to a formative boil by the cusp of the 20th century. Shirer's masterwork delved deeply into the men that directly, (or more likely), indirectly shaped the destructive mind and musings of Hitler.

Over the course of the 1800s, the names that fueled the ethnic fires of what became World War I and II ideological-driven tenets, ran back to Hegel, Treitschke, Marx, Nietzsche, and through Richard Wagner and to an Englishman: Houston Stewart Chamberlain. Hegel, of the dialectic, is undoubtedly the most visibly enduring into the present day (particularly in the world's educational systems) with the Thesis, Antithesis, and Synthesis control framework. But in the hands of the global parasitic (GP) elite, the dialectic formulates as: create the problem, exploit the reaction, and offer the solution. Rinse and repeat until the long-sought agendas are accomplished through constant ideological struggle. Shirer reflected cleanly this came out of Hegel's adoration of State Power:

“To Hegel the State is all, or almost all. Among other things, he says, it is the highest revelation of the ‘world spirit’; it is the ‘moral universe’; it is ‘the actuality of the ethical idea...ethical mind...knowing and thinking itself’; the State ‘has the supreme right against the individual, whose supreme duty is to be a member of the State...for the right of the world spirit is above all special privileges (98).”⁷⁶

Hegel's role in Marxism is not to be diminished here. Shirer minimized Marx throughout this Reichian reflection (appearing just twice in 1,273 pages), possibly due to Marx's endpoint: a “no State” outcome. Nevertheless, Shirer linked the “inspiration” of Hitler and Marx together as being drawn from Hegelian philosophies (98).⁷⁷

In Marxism, the “anarchic” no-State desires are nearly implausible when applied to Modernity.⁷⁸ Even the “best” examples of communism (the final action desired by Marx, the removal of the State) prematurely finishes with a one-party authoritarian rulership firmly in place. For such ideologists with political power, the ultimate expression of Marxism is not as appealing once the enormously risky and deathly domination of a submitted people has been pursued, so obsessively, to an assured, slavish end. Their final task is not sanely possible – because enemies arise that will gladly ensure that death befalls the leader that steps aside even in the slightest. By then, as well, the psychological and physiological pressures (required struggles) may well drive one towards a (Godless) madness.

Humanity as such is flawed, and will continue to be, even as its better organizing principles – a healthy tension of individual liberties and rights versus an agreed upon social contract under a modest Nation-State – has, and can be, achieved successfully for nearly all of its peoples. However, such requires a stern diligence, and vigilance, that most populations grow carelessly complacent about and ignore inevitable circumstances of corruption, criminality and perversion in the State that will result in the present times we see unfolding, exponentially.

One offers here that a political psychopathy is a key to this repetitive problem, that of: high intellect, motivation and malevolence, in amply supply, and fueled up by wealth and positioning to easily pervert lesser political sociopaths, personality-disordered, or even “normal” people.⁷⁹

About 1-4% of the human population has these characteristics⁸⁰ that drive societies into the dustbin, as Hitler and his lesser minions were overwhelming so disordered. Thereafter, the evolutionary game resets; and it takes about 3-4 generations to spin the wheel of war up again through these humans without a conscience.

A new set of psychopaths – who are not actually ideologically pure, but parasitic in behaviors and use any manipulation to acquire success, or relief from boredom, garner enough political or positional power over a large enough percentage of humanity to create the appropriate backdrop for enormous social destabilization, leading to large-scale wars.

Sadly, financial markets and run-of-the-mill opportunists fuel these megalomaniacs-in-the-making towards such wars and mass death. It is not capitalism – here to blame – it is rampant cronyism, corruption, cartel or monopolistic behaviors towards socialism, large intrusions by government (elitist-level forces), that must “please the mob” and keep their lies pathologically spinning to keep their ruling places at the top. Thus, divide-n-rule, invisible enemies, blame shifting to lower classes, to support this much larger point: psychopathic-level behaviors grow from disastrous mismanagement and routine and ignored criminal activities.

Beyond Marx, Nietzsche provided an operative present-day pillar towards a “European Union and world government (99)”⁸¹ that has come to a partial fruition. Nietzsche, as Shirer reinforced was useful to the common Nazi; and one keenly speculates, the common themes of Klaus Schwab flow as well out of a Nietzschean worldview:

“There was some ground for this appropriation of Nietzsche as one of the originators of the Nazi Weltanschauung (worldview). Had not the philosopher thundered against democracy and parliaments, preached the will to power, praised war and proclaimed the coming of the master race and superman – and in the most telling aphorisms? A Nazi could proudly quote him on almost every conceivable subject, and did. On Christianity: ‘the one great curse, the one enormous and innermost perversion... I call it the one immortal blemish of mankind... This Christianity is no more than the typical teaching of the Socialists... ‘There is no such thing as the right to live, the right to work, or the right to be happy: in this respect man is no different from the meanest worm.’ (100).”⁸²

An analysis of this amoral economic design is provided in Sutton’s Genesis of Corporate Socialism, by highlighting Rockefeller, Morgan that forebode what is the rise of a Larry Fink, Bill Gates, or Jeff Bezos:

“Old John D. Rockefeller and his 19th century fellow-capitalists were convinced of one absolute truth: that no great monetary wealth could be accumulated under the impartial rules of a competitive laissez faire society. The only sure road to the acquisition of massive wealth was monopoly: drive out your competitors, reduce competition, eliminate laissez-faire, and above all get state protection for your industry through compliant politicians and government regulation. This last avenue yields a legal monopoly, and a legal monopoly always leads to wealth.

This robber baron schema is also, under different labels, the socialist plan. The difference between a corporate state monopoly and a socialist state monopoly is essentially only the identity of the group controlling the power structure. The essence of socialism is monopoly control by the state using hired planners and academic sponges. On the other hand, Rockefeller, Morgan, and their corporate friends aimed to acquire and control their monopoly and to maximize its profits through influence in the state political apparatus; this, while it still needs hired planners and academic sponges, is a discreet and far more subtle process than outright state ownership under socialism. Success for the Rockefeller gambit has depended particularly upon focusing public attention upon largely irrelevant and superficial historical creations, such as the myth of a struggle between capitalists and communists, and careful cultivation of political forces by big business. We call this phenomenon of corporate legal monopoly—market control acquired by using political influence—by the name of corporate socialism (62).”⁸³

Our 21st century timeframe repeated this monopolistic control model guised under a WEF “public-private partnership” moniker. The purposeful rise of the Technocrat – hired planners and academic sponges – formed a combined model schema, the corporate behemoth (Apple) and the U.S. government (through Agency “powers”): Fascism married Socialism. Meanwhile generated irrelevancies – the 2010s politically-pitched battles over racism, domestic terrorism, and fascism from the common political right are conveniently divisive tropes sold by the overwhelming, partnered-with-WEF media partners and advertisers.

WEF partner companies numbered well over 1,000 worldwide as of this writing. The list includes all sectors of industry. Their influence campaigns invited thousands of participants from government and corporations across the world to Davos yearly to hold both public (and private meetings) where one can tell, from the public pronouncements, the goal is not better governance. Rather, it is better control of world populations without their consent or negotiation. Due to Switzerland’s so-called neutrality – it violated this precept in 2022, siding with the European Union over the Russia-Ukraine War – since 1815, Davos provides a schema to run the world without consequences.⁸⁴

The WEF website provided a treasure trove of white papers and Marxist approaches to all problems usable for their fear-based agenda: particularly Nature, Health and Climate Change. Klaus’s organization provides translation into Chinese at the bottom of their articles too.⁸⁵

Oliver Schwab, Klaus’s son, is married to a Chinese woman and is the managing director of the WEF in Beijing, China.^{86,87} Notable here as well, Klaus’s daughter focuses on gender issues.

In 2017 and 2022, Xi Jinping provided the opening speech at the annual meeting at Davos.⁸⁸ This coincided with Xi’s 5-year term renewal as the CCP’s paramount leader. In October 2022, Xi became CCP leader for life, and displayed his power visibly in the removal of former paramount leader Hu Jintao, his predecessor.^{89,90} One suspects Klaus’s family does not run afoul of the CCP leadership as Xi is now completely in control of the military, a power well beyond even Mao’s.⁹¹

Nietzsche’s forewarning (and his heartfelt desire), Shirer linked to the mindset of Hitler:

“...the coming elite who would rule the world and from whom the superman would spring. In The Will to Power [Nietzsche] exclaims: ‘A daring and ruler race is building itself up...The aim should be to prepare a transvaluation of values for a particularly strong kind of man, most highly gifted in intellect and will. This man and the elite around him will become the ‘lords of the earth (101).’”⁹² [My emphasis.]

Hitler “appropriated” the Lords of the Earth (101) phrase that predestined the New World Order propagandistic phrasing of late 20th century men from Kissinger to George H.W. Bush to Obama and to his former Vice-President Joe Biden in the 21st century.

In a telling paragraph, from Bloodlands by Timothy Snyder, one can get a sense of how world order is but a bone between two, dogged ideologies: socialism and fascism. Snyder wrote:

“The Soviet Union was the only realistic source of calories for Germany and its west European empire, which together and separately were net importers of food. As Hitler knew, in later 1940 and early 1941 ninety percent of the food shipments from the Soviet Union came Soviet Ukraine. Like Stalin, Hitler tended to see Ukraine itself as a geopolitical asset, and its people as instruments who tilled the soil, tools that could be exchanged with others or discarded. For Stalin, mastery of Ukraine was the precondition and proof of the triumph of his version of socialism. Purged, starved, collectivized, and terrorized, it fed and defended Soviet Russia and the rest of the Soviet Union. Hitler dreamed of the endlessly fertile Ukrainian soil, assuming that Germans would extract more from the terrain than the Soviets.”⁹³

When ‘World Order’ is sought, submission is sought against the people caught by the upheavals to achieve it. Now those two ideologies have merged in a 21st century obsessive quest for world order.

Klaus’s overall intellectual heft is promoted by his Goebbels: Yuval Noah Harari. Nicknamed “the prophet,”⁹⁴ Dr. Harari is an Israeli historian and author of Sapiens and Homo Deus.⁹⁵ Harari speaks and writes as an observable atheist (or at least ascribable as a secular Jew).

Critics, namely the departed Dr. Zev Zelenko⁹⁶, observant of the Jewish faith, noticed Yuval’s messaging was not much differentiated from Nazi ideology, stating “all the Godlessness that has been breed in academia... and the embodiment...and [Yuval] is the leader of the movement to destroy God (23:16-24:04).”⁹⁷

Yuval has suggested that: “Free will is over.”⁹⁸ This idea flowed naturally out of many 19th century German thinking and supported the intellectual ammunition for what came about in the first half of the 20th century. (And at present: the 21st century’s main leadership and world actors have made it apparent that individual rights, free will, are not a concern.)

More than one analyst can reflect the WEF is not about one ideology. But a mixture, a collective of influences (to appeal to socialist-supporting Masses) congealed towards an inflexible, technology-driven end: mass top-down control that is a but high-tech driven Totalitarianism.

New war drums began their beat around the same time Klaus's latest book was wrapped up in late 2021. With Ukrainian family origins, Undersecretary of State Victoria Nuland landed again at the maidenhead of Ukrainian policy.⁹⁹ After the 2014 Maidan Revolution, with her work there completed for Obama and Biden¹⁰⁰, she toured the think tank circuit and landed at Brookings prior to being selected, yet again, by Biden. Nuland, a noted neocon and married into the radical sect that designed and deployed the response to the War on Terror circa 1999-2005, visited Moscow in October 2021, just a month after the U.S. chaotically left Afghanistan with billions in weaponry abandoned and 13 dead soldiers.¹⁰¹

This meeting lit a fire under Putin's geopolitical positioning in Ukraine as Nuland made threats to wreck the entire Russian economy.¹⁰² Putin's memory and resume dates back to his old KGB days and his KGB boss and paramount leader Yuri Andropov, and predecessor, Leonid Brezhnev.¹⁰³ Undoubtedly, with Putin's chess background, thuggish mentality, and near quarter century running Russia, such threats made are not taken idly. Especially coming from a Ukrainian that has a Russian obsession and the means to carry them out called the U.S. military.¹⁰⁴

On February 8, 2023, Pulitzer-Prize winning Seymour Hersh published, "How America Took Out the Nord Stream Pipeline," on his Substack. Hersh stated that:

"Last June, the Navy divers, operating under the cover of a widely publicized mid-summer NATO exercise known as BALTOPS 22, planted the remotely triggered explosives that, three months later, destroyed three of the four Nord Stream pipelines, according to a source with direct knowledge of the operational planning.

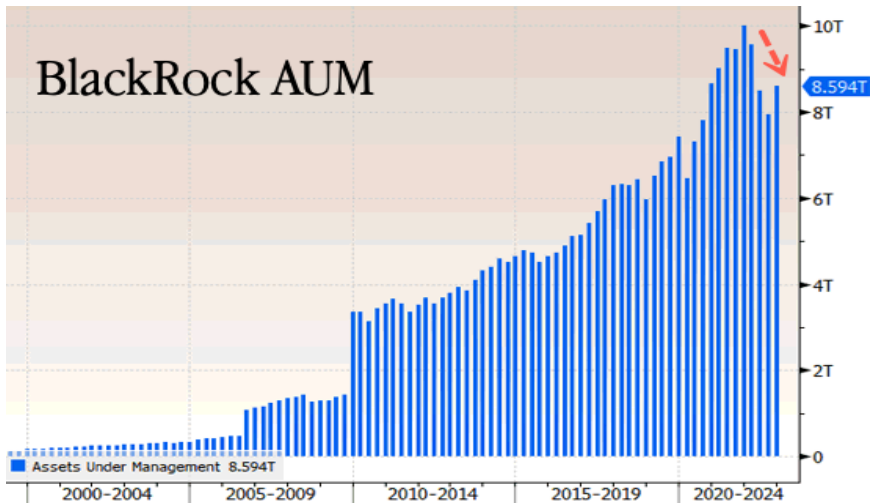

Two of the pipelines, which were known collectively as Nord Stream 1, had been providing Germany and much of Western Europe with cheap Russian natural gas for more than a decade. A second pair of pipelines, called Nord Stream 2, had been built but were not yet operational. Now, with Russian troops massing on the Ukrainian border and the bloodiest war in Europe since 1945 looming, President Joseph Biden saw the pipelines as a vehicle for Vladimir Putin to weaponize natural gas for his political and territorial ambitions."¹⁰⁵

The inflationary pressures are present yet again. The world watched as their consumer prices went up right after the printing of trillions of dollars in stimulus since the March 2020 lockdowns. Thereafter, the governments, particularly the United States, spent trillions on various welfare programs and defiled the idea of balancing budgets. The U.S.

national debt from 2019 to 2023 rose by $8 trillion to over $31 trillion.¹⁰⁶ The World Debt blew well past $300 trillion with OTC and shadow financial derivatives that are beyond the quadrillion dollar range.^{107, 108, 109}

This, as Shirer reflected above, benefited only the most powerful companies. Chief among them, in the present day, starting in March 2020: BlackRock. BlackRock secured access to Federal Reserve fiat money with $454 Billion coming directly from the 2020 CARES Act.¹¹⁰ Larry Fink, a close ally of Klaus Schwab and Bill Gates, had $10 trillion in assets under management at BlackRock (in 2021) and desired “forcing behaviors” according to his Deal Book interviews.¹¹¹ Another black, Blackstone, began buying up residential and commercial real estate as well within the fiat generous FED policy. All the usual billionaires saw increased largesse out of the FED printing money for them, while wiping out the middle class in lockstep.

The powers that be furthered narratives about White extremism. The United States agencies keenly incited (and surveilled) the U.S. population to find such extremism, that of course, one could say these government agencies are responsible for causing through psychological and economic duress. Testimony in May 2023, by FBI whistleblowers, confirm that has been the FBI’s agenda, in particular regarding J6, with infiltration.¹¹²

In the early 2010s, off the well-known financial corruption regarding the Great Recession, there was a cynical design to shift narratives to racism in the United States when Tea Party and Occupy Wall Street movements formed from the right and left. Those movements were infiltrated; even as these movements were rightly upset at the Globalist money class over destructing their financial lives, with derivatives and hustles. Millions of working-class folks were left to pay for the ills of an unaccountable Wall Street and the U.S. Federal “governance” class.

The Clinton, Bush and Obama administrations all were to various degrees determinative of what happened through the decline of a middle class, no matter their races or creeds. The exportation of jobs, the gutting of manufacturing, the rise of behemoth financial entities, and the irresponsible choices these administrations made regarding OTC derivatives, housing, wars, manufacturing, and debt servicing, made for a master class: how-to steal from the very people that feed the country, through farming, and their intellectual capacity, for innovation, while government wasted their taxes on Middle East wars, Technocrats and Socialist Giveaways to buy up enough voters to maintain their power.

Global Debt By Type ($T, Constant 2014 FX), Q4:00 – Q2:15

As Shirer noted, tellingly, about such government failures: “What good were standards and practices of such a society, which encouraged savings and investment and solemnly promised a safe return from them and then defaulted? Was this not a fraud on the people (Shirer, 57)?”¹¹³ Shirer’s take would run at odds with the 2023 Biden administration FHFA mortgage policy that punishes those with higher creditworthiness with higher mortgage payments to subsidize higher-risk borrowers.¹¹⁴ Thirty-four state financial officials sent a letter opposing this naked “equity” policy that disincentivizes good financial behavior while burdening what is left of the American middle class.¹¹⁵

As well, these corrupting forces were not isolated to just the United States. In Canada, and across the globe, governments threatened and harassed their populations over the 2020 'enhanced' flu virus, had demonized their thoughts and verbal suggestions for years,¹¹⁶ and refused to listen about the pervasive, media insanity of locking down healthy people with the immuno-compromised. This occurred in lockstep with destructing economic lives of tens of millions of small businesses worldwide at the visible hands of World Economic Forum Partners (WEF), the World Health Organization (WHO), and China.

China's lockdown strategy was mimicked (intentionally copied) to destabilize Western economies (as world debt levels skyrocketed past $300 trillion*¹¹⁷) to usher in Klaus's Great Reset. A myriad of political figures parroted this propaganda line routinely in 2020 and through to the present, especially when useful as a negative reinforcement (or punishment) for those that do not adhere to its illogic; or irrationality.

[*Getting an accurate account (see above) of World Debt depends on which organization provides the numbers, when they provide them, and whether they are measuring the same basket of countries, entities and persons correctly in one snapshot. One has found that World Debt is more likely well over $320 trillion (US) and growing as of this 2023 writing. Any changing of the world reserve currency will undoubtedly make this number a very different ballgame in the future. Collapse allows for the next global Ponzi-Madoff scheme until that one collapses as well.].

Additionally, the psychological deflection tactics of governments regarding their people's concerns about corruption, equal justice under the law, allowance of sects to operate with legal impunity (in rioting, migration flows) and the grooming of minors, but calling this social justice, reflected purposeful, ideological schisms brought on by class warfare. Present-day governments are populated with persons that show markers of achieving class consciousness: a blatant disregard for the common people because the bureaucrat is no longer connected with their citizenry; see themselves above the population; and hold a separate set of beliefs and desires altogether from the people they are meant to serve.

Similar class issues operated under the fleeting Weimar Republic, post-World War I, as Shirer expressed:

“Under General Hans von Seeckt, the brilliant creator of the 100,000-man Reichswehr, the Army, small as it was in numbers, became a state within a state, exerting an increasing influence on the nation's foreign and domestic policies until a point was reached where the Republic's continued existence depended on the will of the officer corps (60).”¹¹⁸ [My emphasis.]

This battle of class ideologies – that of nation-state integrity, control of its borders, culture, economy and constitutions versus no borders, mass migration, 24-7 tracking and censorship of unapproved messages by unelected federal bureaucracies – is ordinary, post-WW2 nationalism versus an extremist 21st century Globalist mindset. The latter is being installed by U.S. Agencies through the octogenarian-in-chief Biden's executive orders and unbridled spending by the U.S. Congress that is coming to cliff of catastrophe.

The Federal Administrative State, numbering 2.9 million plus¹¹⁹, is skewed 90% plus towards one political party in concert with social media and technology companies donations to that party.^{120,121,122} Including the State Administration rolls, and this total tops 21 million combined.¹²³

Thus, the 21st century hallmarks of fascism arise out of a leftist (Democrat) worldview: collectivism and censorship guised behind so-called empathetic natures regarding the planet, but are in the service of federal agencies from the FBI, the CIA, to the CDC and NIH, and this alphabet list could continue on much further. These forces are reinforced by a Neocon-controlled foreign policy that D.C. Democrats now applaud.

The rise of the next dictator(s) is not in the future, but are present now. Those forces are being made from the congealing of the factors of inflation, ongoing war and future conflicts, massive social changes, and the seizure of power by international bodies. This last one, pivots on the WHO Pandemic Treaty which, as designed, will further subjugate nation-states to the whims of autocratic health officers and their declarations of emergencies.¹²⁴ The prime ministers and presidents of countries are demoted in decision-making while closely adhering to the formalized ideas of control of an international body that is at the whims of China's one-party rule and their like-minded billionaire-on-health: Bill Gates.

Thus, when Klaus mentioned penetrating cabinets, such can be seen as a chess maneuver: to control or influence greatly both the international bodies and the nation-state agency heads through slick indoctrination; and by early selection of those most amendable to these practices, a two-pronged pincer move has been achieved. That of a firm grasp on Global and Nation-state top technocrats that read from the Transhuman Bible.

Unlike his Nazi-forming progenitor, Klaus amped up the fear of future Earth catastrophes propaganda versus the one trick, race-based propaganda of Hitler. Klaus developed a closed-silo selection process for young, talented and easily corrupted minds. The Young Global Leaders echoes the Who's Who in industry catalogs. While Hitler's ragtag group congealed through the Weimar chaos and their later propagandist activities brought in extremists from all walks of life, particularly army veterans who felt rightly or wrongly: "stabbed in the back (Shirer, 31)."¹²⁵ The Nazis cultivated well a host of sociopaths, from all walks of life, including schoolteachers, that were later called, "sadists," "homosexuals," and "perverts (50)."¹²⁶

Biden's administration (and Klaus is very friendly with Biden personally), hired a transgendered man for a top HHS position; a crossdresser, assigned to nuclear security, who later stole luggage at the airport, and was fired.¹²⁷ Biden's executive orders emboldened a transgender movement, while diminishing and demonizing half the population: calling them MAGA Republicans or MAGA extremists.¹²⁸

If anyone in the United States dared to question their schools' policies,¹²⁹ in promoting radical LGBTQ towards minors, as early as pre-middle school, they were labeled "domestic extremists" or "terrorists."¹³⁰ These smears coincided with a rape by a minor, who later claimed himself as transgendered, that was covered up by a Loudoun County, Northern Virginia school system, home to many federal officials.¹³¹

On March 27, 2023, a transgender male attacked a Nashville, Tennessee Christian school, killing six, including three children.¹³² Motive may lay in a long-ago sex crime, not prosecuted. As of this writing, the FBI has not released the manifesto that accompanied the heinous individual action.

(It is not the gun; it's the psychological destruction by a criminal medical community promoting changes as affirming and curative of gender dysphoria, in this particular case. Such medical malpractice echoes the Nazi regime's psychiatric maleficence that emboldened the Malthusian and racial purists.¹³³ By never addressing the underlying issues: criminal abuses and the inability to process one's emotions become visible and destructive. Shamefully, these procedures are now exploited as a market for profit¹³⁴ and used as a country-fracturing agenda through kids.¹³⁵)

The school systems are fraught with LGBTQ erotica. A generation or two ago, these books would have triggered arrests of the peddlers of such pornographic propaganda. Now, librarians reign supreme while the parent is made toothless – and The State has decided anything shall go – if they can get any alleged “affirmative consent” from a child.

Teachers and administrators encourage minor children to hide information from their parents – their mothers and fathers who feed, cloth, house and love their children – are to be inferior in the decisions of their children: the ones they brought into this world out of love.¹³⁶ Gender reassignment surgeries among minors are rising^{137,138} as doctors have divested themselves from their ethical phrase: “first, do no harm.”

The WHO has promoted Marxist ideology for many years – as it deems minors are able to consent to vaccinations and encourages rebellion against their parents. This again parallels the Hitler's youth movement or Mao's cultural revolution. Shirer noted this occurred in Germany (249):

“The German schools, from first grade through the universities, were quickly Nazified. Textbooks were hastily rewritten, curricula were changed, Mein Kampf was made – in the words of Der Deutsche Erzieher, official organ of the educators – “our infallible pedagogical guiding star” and teachers who failed to see the light were cast out.”¹³⁹

One of the more pernicious echoes here comes from the hands of Klaus's chief partnership on the WEF website: The Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. This NGO bought its way into libraries and scholastic endeavors, specifically under the Obama administration, “Common Core,” initiatives.

Even a leftist media organ, The Washington Post, had little positive to say about Gates's involvement in your child's education, noting that, “Critics go further, charging that some of their projects have harmed public schools because they were unworkable from the start and consumed resources that could have been better spent.”^{140,141}

A child, with incomplete mental capacity, that can be psychologically twisted to hate their parents and snitch on them as well for any disciplining in respect to their unapproved choices, will be weaponized to get The State involved. (This does not mean parental abuse is to be ignored. But evidence is required, not accusations, that are sought now by teachers that act as an East German Stasi recruiter.¹⁴²) The Daily Mail reported on June 19, 2023: “Some teachers...discussed being 'subversive,' how their personal 'code of ethics' trumped laws, and how to 'hide' a trans student's new name and gender from their parents.”¹⁴³

From that point forward, the easily manipulated child will thoughtlessly carry out any messaging (as a cult follower, a Stockholm Syndrome sufferer) to achieve acceptance from its new master: a state official who takes glee in their new-found control and state funding that comes from garnering such unelected and undeserved amassed powers.

Among Klaus's most revealing moments, out of his mouth, was this:

“I give you one example which for me was probably a crucial moment in my life. I traveled for the first time to Brazil, I met a priest who was known at that time as the priest of the poor people. His name was Dom Hélder Câmara.”¹⁴⁴

Carson McAuley's multi-part series on Klaus noted here that, regarding Câmara and Klaus:

“What we do know, however, is that Câmara, a bishop slight in stature but of immense reputation and presence, showed Schwab around his diocese of Recife, an infamously impoverished shantytown in the north-east of the country. So affected was Schwab by what he claims to have witnessed there, that he was compelled to invite the little clergyman to speak at his convention in Davos. His business associates were less enthused – Câmara was a card-carrying communist, after all. Yet so heavily did the memory of Recife weigh on the conscience of Schwab (as he takes pains to emphasize) that he pushed on regardless, the archbishop's inclusion so controversial that, for a time, it threatened to jeopardize the still fledgling WEF project.

...You see, while still in his mid-twenties, Father Câmara, as he was known at the time, was rapidly rising in the ranks of a clerical far-right movement known as Acao Integralista Brasileira (AIB), later establishing himself on the group's Supreme Council, as well as in the role of personal secretary to their founder. The organization's resemblance to European fascist counterparts was not only stark, but intentional. Modelling themselves on Mussolini's Blackshirts, the AIB boasted their own paramilitary faction, the youthful Câmara so dedicated to their cause that he is said to have worn their distinctive green uniform under his cassock during his ordination.”¹⁴⁵ [My emphasis.]

In essence, there is an intentional replay of pre-WW2 activities, regarding health, perversion, propaganda and power. Klaus’s perpetrating players reused a Rockefeller corporate-governance socialist revolution, to feedback on the bottom-up perverting of values through intense social engineering from family to school through social media. This marriage has achieved far greater control of the 8 billion (in current population) while destructing their economies and livelihoods.

To echo back again to 1933, after Hitler’s 1924 incarceration, he picked right up where he left off in that November 1923 Weimar Revolution. The further collapse of world economies – the 1929-37 Great Depression – was felt worse in Germany than in the United States by most records. Deflation, bankruptcies and beggar-thy-neighbor policies meant real cults of personality grew. (These “cults” are happening now. These are to create a left-right dichotomy – to weaken both – who might stand against the GP establishment narratives and their desires in the 2030 Agenda.)

Prior representatives of these cults of personalities: Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, and to a lesser degree, Tōjō, were all responsible for an Axis solidifying towards a totalitarian response that resulted in World War II (Stockwin, 27).¹⁴⁶ Western alliances had Churchill and FDR with Generals like MacArthur capturing a lion’s share of praise, deservedly, or not.

Klaus’s birth in Germany happened as Adolf Hitler was named Time’s Man of the Year in 1938.¹⁴⁷

Agenda 2030

- Social and Carbon Credit System [Modeled on China's]
- Drones, Facial Recognition, and Movement Sensors
- Digital Health Passport [EU and WHO are rolling these out]
- Rationing of Food and Energy
- Patent on seeds and restricted access to heirloom food
- Abolishment of Genders [ESG-led InBev trans-marketing¹⁴⁸]
- Strict Regulations on Medicine and Treatments [One Health¹⁴⁹]
- Universal Basic Income
- Controlled Fertility/Reproduction
- Elimination of Cash: CBDC
- Rationing of Other Natural Resources
- Abolishment of Private Property
- Fourth Industrial Revolution (Big Tech, IOT, AI, Digital Currencies)

This is their agenda. The political forces in place have no qualms about destroying anyone that stands in their way of achieving this. Sadly, many people have swallowed militantly-pushed propaganda regarding environmental dangers and the convenience of 15-minute cities. Through broadcasts that hyper-sensationalize anomalies in environment (fires – conveniently those can be set for visual impact¹⁵⁰) while minimizing the intrusive nature of cameras and digital transactions – that trace and will control every purchase a person makes. Selling basic income (UBI) to demotivate a population and makes them slaves of The State. Abolishing gender and property are communist goals. Normalizing the State-control operations in one's health, reproduction, and treatments, merely to appear fair, when in fact, the goal is to degrade, except to the Elite.

The Globalists Parasites (GP), whether by long-term plan (the likeliest option) or serendipitous realization, believe that with the advances in technology, the disparity in military forces versus a mass of humans united (which is why so much propaganda is being amplified to divvy up people into conflict camps), and the GP's financial ability (and creativity) to buy off the needed technocratic servants, from weak politicians to amoral police forces, these power players feel confident on imposing these Fascistic-Communist agendas, The Great Reset propaganda.

During the last twenty plus years, since 9/11, there has been a multi-pronged erasure of: U.S. Constitutional rights, economic security, and the introduction of social media poison to control the masses. The social media is engineered towards distracting populations (in the U.S., and throughout the West) to cede their citizenry and voting rights to people never elected to represent them. Notable on 9/11, Klaus Schwab ate breakfast with disgraced broadcaster Charlie Rose in New York City.¹⁵¹ Bush prepped for a Middle East war, while the Far East war continued.¹⁵²

Politics Under a China Dream

“I do not care if it is a white cat or a black cat...It is a good cat so long as it catches mice.” – Deng Xiaoping, Paramount CCP leader from 1978-89 (circa 1961) ^{153,154}

China’s leaders, over the last one hundred years, bluntly desire to rectify China’s place on the world stage, namely: its lead imperialistic status with communist characteristics.¹⁵⁵ At the backend of the Qing Dynasty (1636-1912), as the Xinhai Revolution occurred and ended over 2,000 years of former imperialistic rule, their country’s plights foreshadowed their closest imperialistic neighbor, Russia, own revolutionary fires, a mere five years away from consuming their Czarist rule. China’s revolution was complicated by a prolonged power struggle, compared to the relatively short 1917 Russian Revolution. China’s spanned nearly the entire first half of the 20th century where major world events relegated the Chinese to an afterthought status in most 20th century historian’s recounting.

In the 19th century, Chinese military forces were routinely dominated in battles against the British, French, Russian and Japanese Empires. The bitterness born out of these defeats, tied particularly to negotiated treaties from those defeats, was defined as “their century of humiliation,” a nationalistic outcry that began making the rounds as early as 1915. The decades-long internal battles in China – a country of over 400 million by 1915 – saw nearly all of their frontline leaders molded by these precursory events, ongoing struggles, and remembered well by their families, fueling deep resentments into their political DNAs. These future leaders were hierarchically well-placed – Deng Xiaoping¹⁵⁶, Mao Zedong¹⁵⁷, later, Jiang Zemin¹⁵⁸ – and well-educated for the Chinese of their time. Many Chinese that became leading communist (and nationalist) leaders from the mid-20th century onward got their educational polish through communist Moscow, starting in the 1920s.¹⁵⁹

As Elizabeth McGuire, professor of history at California State University noted for her book Red at Heart, “What began as a trickle in the ’20s still represented a significant proportion of Chinese Communist Party membership at the time and by 1928, as much as 15 per cent of Politburo members had been educated in Russia. In total, up to the 1950s, 8,000 or more Chinese students passed through Russian revolutionary institutions, typically staying for about two years.”¹⁶⁰

Though China’s revenge plot was slow, as internal strife continued throughout the 1920s through 1940s, with healthy assistance from the Japanese nationalists in Tokyo invasion of Manchuria, the plan finally found its shaky legs when the Kuomintang (KMT) nationalists were defeated, and Mao Zedong became the most notable paramount leader of the People’s Republic of China in 1949.

Mao, China’s leader for over a quarter century, relied on struggle sessions to keep the people inline; expert propaganda to hide his atrocities, like the Great Leap Forward’s 45 million dead¹⁶¹; and targeting of the youth for his adoration, if they were useful, in keeping hidden enemies and powerplays off-balance. But all of these tactics were ways to keep on schedule a single-minded, century-long march out of humiliation. That 100-year plan: to take over the world by 2049 as its sole superpower.

Such a plan is not based in force. Rather, the art of subversion of populations (The Art of War), through the capture of elite persons and organizations, stealing or acquiring technology deceptively to accelerate technological rise, blackmail or graymail of leaders, lawfare inside Western institutions, control of world institutions to push “Chinese communism” policies, and through other forms of political warfare – that are subtle, effective and barely perceivable to common folks – but are a slow-boiling bat stew the Chinese Communists, the CCP, hope to cook up for their long-despised, Western enemies.

To be even, the Western model – driven by that neoconservative penchant for warring through direct violence – pounds like a heartbeat at the center of U.S. foreign policy, spanning all post-WW2 Presidents from Truman to Biden. China’s leaders routinely provided that information as well in their propaganda campaigns against the West. “Violent Americans bring pain wherever they go,” might be uttered by a well-schooled CCP propagandist or state media broadcaster.

Such well-honed training is impactful because all high-born Chinese know that story – centered on its lasting and engrained resentment of the United Kingdom (British Empire) down to even the rural populations “picked” out of the fields by the “examination method” for civil service. The CCP restarted such examinations in 1977 (after Mao’s death and bloody Cultural Revolution) to reward intelligence found and excellent parroting skills of “those who sit for the Gaokao must master Marxism, Maoism, and other doctrines of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP).”^{162,163} To the present day, 85 million Chinese are still illiterate, showing that only the brightest get the special CCP treatment.¹⁶⁴

For decades, political forces in the United States criticized and rightly wanted to subdue its world policing and constant interventions into other nation-state affairs. What once spawned significant political push back on the Vietnam War (infiltrated by COINTELPRO activities¹⁶⁵) and other notable military forays into third-world locales, ultimately grew to a whimpering, ineffective silence by 9/11. Those true political opponents are never among: the Globalist Elite, the billionaires, or the agency class in Washington D.C. These well-entrenched latter groups pick who to side with – or rather, how to destabilize a country to insert a favorable well-funded dictator – that has been erroneously called American Colonization. A better term might be: Global Military Adventurism.¹⁶⁶

The Wide Spreading of Democracy has “Boom-er-rang” impacts

These adventuristic operations are costly and borne by the citizenry, who are rarely consulted through the ballot box – if even then – about their desires to war with populations halfway around the world. These ginned-up skirmishes benefited the military industrial complex that picks (or platforms) the politicians, domestically and internationally. But as murderous Mao said, “Political power grows out of the barrel of a gun.”¹⁶⁷

Mao’s truism of such power plays came in an August 1927 Communist Party central meeting. There a “denouncing” of Chen Duxiu¹⁶⁸ was declared after Mao determined Chen was responsible for “right capitulationism” while reaffirming the “Agrarian Revolutionary War” against the KMT nationalists. Chen, born to a wealthy family in 1879, was one of the leading revolutionaries by 1915, forming a journal based in Shanghai: Xinqingnian (“New Youth”). But it was Mao that ended Chen’s significance within the CCP completely by 1929. As often with Mao, he “criticized” those that did not “actively follow the proletariat leadership,” namely, himself. Mao noted at the heart of the Revolution, that military affairs should be “emphasized” and that those guns should be in communist’s hands, above all.¹⁶⁹

Such a statement became more powerful after the Japanese invaded in 1937, and weapons, verboten in any communist trek, were useful, and essential, even if Mao could not resist introducing that communists be the conscious ones to oversee any guns placed in peasant’s hands:

“It is very difficult for the labouring people, who have been deceived and intimidated by the reactionary ruling classes for thousands of years, to awaken to the importance of having guns in their own hands. Now that Japanese imperialist oppression and the nation-wide resistance to it have pushed our labouring people into the arena of war, communists should prove themselves the most politically conscious leaders in this war.”¹⁷⁰ [My emphasis.]

Such political power plays lay as well at the “tip of the spear” for notable U.S. neocons: George H.W. Bush and George W. Bush. Through catastrophic treks into Afghanistan and Iraq, under W. Bush, a two-decade war was funded. Expanding to include: Libya, Syria and Yemen, among others in the “democracy” trek. Americans now faces technical bankruptcy due to these policies. According to Brown University’s Costs of War project, these adventures surpassed $2.9 trillion, by 2023:¹⁷¹

- DOD Operations: $862 billion
- Veterans’ Care: $233 billion
- State Department Operations: $62 billion
- Increases to DOD base budget: $412 billion
- Interest (to service the debt): $230 billion¹⁷²

The total post-9/11 war appropriations and related spending (as of Fiscal Year 2022) eclipsed $5.8 trillion.¹⁷³ This is equal to all the entire U.S. Debt from 1783-2001 (Q3).¹⁷⁴ Nevertheless, the region is no safer; no more democratic; and instead, is actively encouraged to migrate and populate in the United States with minimal vetting of persons¹⁷⁵ that would have their reasons to do the terrorism “over here” now that Bush, Obama, Trump and Biden, have done their warring “over there.”¹⁷⁶

Notable here as well, the Bushes were notoriously China-friendly, starting with George H.W. Bush. His forays at the United Nations, as ambassador to China, then onto the CIA director, before being within that single heartbeat of the Presidency for a dozen years, is a quarter-century trek that landed him at the Carlyle Group as a key “consultant” for the Middle East and Asia. This while his son became “the leader of the free world,” who did his stint at Carlyle in early 90s. It was the George W. Bush administration that signed off on China’s entry into World Trade Organization in late 2001.¹⁷⁷ Benefits flowed thereafter to The Elite.

China became quite the participator in a host of intrigues in the United States particularly as the calendar turned to 2020. Evidence points to their “Unrestricted Warfare”^{178,179} or “Asymmetrical Hybrid Warfare”¹⁸⁰ through our political class¹⁸¹, media, academic and medical fields, to name but a selected few here. The further embedding of propaganda and destabilizing methods in the United States occurred in fairly obvious retaliation for recent trade and business deals China enjoyed with prior administrations and overly cozy American MNCs.^{182,183} Trump’s policy of pulling back in offshored jobs, targeted tariffs^{184,185}, and America First initiatives were antithetical to the CCP and the Globalist, Parasitic Elites (GP) planned obsolescence, of Americans, by 2049.¹⁸⁶

This particular CCP plan was well formulated by the 1980s. A 2017 paper written by T. Casey Fleming, Eric L. Qualkenbush, and Anthony M. Chapa, called: “The Secret War Against the United States: The Top Threat to National Security and the American Dream”^{187,188} noted a declaration of war against the U.S. and its Western Allies originated in Program 863 in 1986 then under CCP leader Deng Xiaoping.

China’s social control motivations, Xi’s, are coupled with the grand scheme to replace the United States as the sole superpower. From the 2017 paper published at Cyber Defense Review: “China’s ultimate objective is to harvest and perpetuate the Chinese Dream through the extraction and extinguishing of the American Dream, the American way of life and ending Western Dominance (2).”¹⁸⁹ The authors continued, stating, “The Chinese strategy is that after 200 years of Western global dominance, it is their destiny to reverse roles with the US and to relegate it to a forced supplier with a much lower quality of life...it must be emphasized that AHW strategy is rooted in Unrestricted Warfare or ‘war without rules(2).’¹⁹⁰

The intent is to cause great harm, but to do so, with Art of War subtlety. To bring the U.S. into submission without ever firing a round on U.S. soil or nuclear engagement. Among Chinese General Sun Tzu and his military mantras lay this:

“The supreme art of war is to subdue the enemy without fighting.”¹⁹¹

Through various economic warfare tactics, the CCP keenly desires to control every transaction made with U.S. companies, using shell organizations and fronts to accomplish this in China; and now through its hold on Hong Kong as well. COSCO, for instance, is a state-owned CCP entity whose tentacles run back to the United States in the form of Rosemont Realty.¹⁹² As Peter Schweizer discussed in Secret Empires, Rosemont connects to Hunter Biden that had significant Chinese Communist ties, and thus their control:

“In mid-2014, just as the Rosemont Seneca deal with the Bank of China was getting off the ground, [Dan] Burrell began holding discussions with a Chinese subsidiary called Gemini Investments Limited about buying Rosemont Realty. Gemini might have appeared to be just like any other investment company; publicly traded on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, it offered itself as a conventional real estate investor. However, as can often be the case with China, tracing corporate ownership yields some interesting results. While Gemini Investments is a publicly traded stock, it is called an ‘indirect subsidiary,’ and control of the company is retained by its parent company, Sino-Ocean Land. Gemini Investments’ director and honorary chairman is Li Ming. His corporate ties are to some of the most sensitive and politically important corporations in China. He also served for several terms running as a member of the Chinese Communist Party’s elite so-called People’s Political Consultative Conference (43).”¹⁹³

Sino-Ocean Land is controlled by COSCO which is heavily linked to the PLA and has one of the world’s largest naval footprints, often as a covert arm of the growing Chinese Navy.^{194,195} Hunter, according to his partner, Eric Schwerin, still holds a “minimal interest”¹⁹⁶ in Rosemont Realty even as it was sold to Gemini Investments Limited in August 2015.¹⁹⁷

A U.S. company, like Bain & Company,¹⁹⁸ can lose their status quickly and be placed under “investigation” if the Western CEO resists the China Model.¹⁹⁹ Such is not unusual when China’s BRI initiatives are impacted.

Assistant Secretary of State and retired Brigadier General David Stillwell²⁰⁰ at a September 18, 2019 Foreign Relations committee noted

China uses, “market-distorting economic inducements and penalties, influence operations, and intimidation to persuade other states to heed its political and security agenda.”²⁰¹ U.S. Senator Marc Rubio stated these penalties more bluntly: “Once the Chinese figure out how to do it on their own, they kick those companies out and put them out of business,’ [moreover] he said, adding that foreign companies who do business with China are ‘more focused on the short-term profits.’”²⁰²

U.S. stock exchanges were ordered to be more active against Chinese companies under Trump’s EO #13974, especially those attached to “military use” or “telecom fields.”^{203,204} As a result, several were de-listed to meet this EO requirement. Of course, China retaliated in kind against the likes of Bain, if only later, and unexpectedly – another Art of War technique.

Chinese companies seek public equity markets in the United States to legitimize their operations, which are often “paper tigers” when audited and scrutinized by U.S. officials.²⁰⁵ This happens in concert with undermining a host country’s hospitality through technology thefts.

In June 2022, Bloomberg reported how China steals top microchip technology through Western country’s gross incompetence or its passive complacency.

“ASML accused a Beijing-based firm, regarded by Chinese officials as one of the country’s most promising tech ventures, of potentially stealing its trade secrets. Behind the brief disclosure is an extraordinary multiyear tale of intellectual property theft and a broader threat facing the $556 billion semiconductor industry.

In the report, ASML said the Chinese company, Dongfang Jingyuan Electron Ltd., is related to a defunct Silicon Valley firm, Xtal Inc., which ASML sued for intellectual property theft.

A 2018 trial in California, which received scant attention at the time, provided more detail. Dongfang and Xtal were essentially the same, created a month apart in 2014 by a former ASML engineer named Zongchang Yu, ASML’s attorney told the court. The two companies worked in tandem toward the same goal: obtaining ASML’s technology and transferring it to China, which is seeking to foster its own semiconductor industry, often at the expense of Western companies, the attorney argued.”²⁰⁶

Notable as well, Bloomberg News staffer Haze Fan was arrested by the CCP in Beijing on December 7, 2020.²⁰⁷

“Fan, a Chinese citizen, joined Bloomberg in early 2017 and previously worked for outlets including CNBC, Al Jazeera, CBS and Reuters in Beijing. Chinese nationals can work only as news assistants for foreign media in China and are not allowed to do independent reporting.”²⁰⁸

Fan was released on bail in January 2022.²⁰⁹ Such arrests come when reporters defy or criticize the CCP’s stated (or unstated) policies.

Such fates are not just for journalists. Billionaire Jack Ma of Alibaba and the Ant Group, with a net worth of over $50 billion in China²¹⁰, went astray from Xi’s party line in October 2020, criticizing their banking system, labeling it as a “pawnshop mentality.”²¹¹ Ma said, more critically:

“President Xi once said, ‘success does not have to come from me.’ I understand this phrase to be about a sense of responsibility. It’s about taking responsibility for the future, for tomorrow, for the next generation. Many of the world’s problems today, including China’s, can only be solved by innovation. However, for real innovation to happen, no one will show you the way, and someone must shoulder that responsibility, because innovation is bound to make mistakes. But the question is not how not to make mistakes, but whether we can perfect and correct them after making mistakes and persistently innovate. To make risk-free innovation is to stifle innovation, and there is no risk-free innovation in this world. Oftentimes, managing risk down to zero is the biggest risk.”²¹² [My emphasis.]

Mentioning Xi three times, including the pawnshop mentality statement resulted in Ma’s investigation and disappearing for several months.²¹³ Charlie Munger, another billionaire and noted sidekick of Warren Buffett for sixty years, weighed in on the CCP’s favorite tactic of investigation and re-education during a Yahoo! Finance February 24, 2021 clip. “Jack Ma was very arrogant. Telling the Chinese government how dumb they were and how stupid their policies were. Considering their system that is not what he should be doing.”²¹⁴ Munger noted thereafter how, “the Chinese behave very shrewdly in managing their economy and gotten better results than [United States] have.”

Such results are because of the United States, not in spite of it. Munger and his cohort billionaires are certainly not eager to get on Xi’s bad list. And as such, a billionaire’s words must comport to the CCP vision of Xi.

A “wholeness of unity” ties together all of China’s military, government, business, academics, and media outlets. Their agenda turns on the matter of “living vs. dying” in Communist terms, not, “winning vs. losing” as the once U.S. traditional, free-market Capitalism rests.²¹⁵ Today, these are blurred ideological agendas. The latter being wholly subverted, and resembling more and more, the former, over the past two decades due to Beijing’s worldwide influence operations towards its 2049 ultimate goal.

Leo Timm at Vision Times noted: “From a young age, students are inculcated in the Party’s doctrine of class struggle, focusing their minds on power and profit as the traditional requirements of spiritual cultivation and cultural excellence were lost.”²¹⁶

The Xi-led CCP will kill (or disappear^{217,218}, like Chairman Ye Jianming²¹⁹, Hunter Biden’s former business partner and 8-figure funder^{220,221,222}) anyone who gets in Xi’s way, but prefer using subversive methods first. A running joke in China suggests of their Communist Party schools: “Half of the students will arrest the other half in the future.”²²³

Reflecting that free-thinking Chinese are not allowed – and former classmates become enemies due to their resistance to completely swallow communist indoctrination and fulfill the expectations from receiving education into “The Party.” With that selection, comes a sworn oath of CCP loyalty²²⁴ and potential deployment into the spy game. Nearly 2 million are attached to that task as reported by The Daily Mail.²²⁵

The CCP Party Oath is said with one’s fist raised:

“It is my will to join the Communist Party of China, uphold the Party’s program, observe the provisions of the Party Constitution, fulfill a Party member’s duties, carry out the Party’s decisions, strictly observe Party discipline, guard Party secrets, be loyal to the Party, work hard, fight for communism throughout my life, be ready at all times to sacrifice my all for the Party and the people, and never betray the Party.”²²⁶

The database showed substantial Party representation at major MNCs that are connected to military, technology and pharmaceutical companies. Analysis was done by Shanghai CCP Infographics on Twitter, showing that²²⁷:

1. Wynn Resorts, 144 members
2. Qualcomm, 252
3. Micron Technology, 25 with Ph.D. level students
4. General Motors, 112
5. Volkswagen, 7,615
6. Boeing, 262
7. Thales, a UK military equipment manufacturer, 145 members
8. Airbus, 336
9. Rolls-Royce, 13
10. United States connected organizations, 1,147²²⁸

This December 2020 report triggered Party talking points through their UK embassy spokeswoman: “We urge the media to abandon ideological bias and Cold-War mentality and view China, the Communist Party of China and China’s development in a rational and impartial manner.”²²⁹

Such CCP members are involved in Unrestricted War, using methods such as: data theft or cyberwarfare; intel operations; poisoning products; addictive and lethal drug exportation; propaganda campaigns; business theft through knock-offs; lawfare and arrests of stray Chinese performed on foreign soil²³⁰; infiltrating top organizations; and most usefully, without any military escalation, compromising politicians (Joe Biden) to garner policy favors to achieve the CCP's objectives. All of this is done with minimal risks and low costs versus Western military programs that do a poor job identifying these covert and subversive methods.

Middle East expert²³¹, investigative journalist and best-selling author Lee Smith published on Tablet, "The Thirty Tyrants: The deal that the American elite chose to make with China has a precedent in the history of Athens and Sparta."

A few passages from the piece:

"Because of Trump's pressure on the Americans who benefited extravagantly from the U.S.-China relationship, these strange bedfellows acquired what Marxists call class consciousness—and joined together to fight back, further cementing their relationships with their Chinese patrons. United now, these disparate American institutions lost any sense of circumspection or shame about cashing checks from the Chinese Communist Party, no matter what horrors the CCP visited on the prisoners of its slave labor camps and no matter what threat China's spy services and the People's Liberation Army might pose to national security. Think tanks and research institutions like the Atlantic Council, the Center for American Progress, the East West Institute, the Carter Center, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, and others gorged themselves on Chinese money. The world-famous Brookings Institution had no scruples about publishing a report funded by Chinese telecom company Huawei that praised Huawei technology."^{232,233}

Smith discussing US academia's ties to China and the lack of ethics involved:

"The billions that China gave to major American research universities, like $58 million to Stanford, alarmed U.S. law enforcement, which warned of Chinese counterintelligence efforts to steal sensitive research. But the schools and their name faculty were in fact in the business of selling that research, much of it paid for directly by the U.S. government—which is why Harvard and Yale among other big-name schools appear to have systematically underreported the large amounts that China had gifted them.

Indeed, many of academia’s pay-for-play deals with the CCP were not particularly subtle. In June 2020, a Harvard professor who received a research grant of $15 million in taxpayer money was indicted for lying about his $50,000 per month work on behalf of a CCP institution to ‘recruit and cultivate high-level scientific talent in furtherance of China’s scientific development, economic prosperity and national security.’”²³⁴

That professor was Dr. Charles Lieber; convicted in less than 3 hours and was later sentenced to: two days in jail.^{235,236} DOJ suggested a mere 90 days in jail with $150,000 fine. Neither were remotely adequate – but shows the Biden DOJ, ran by Merrick Garland, biases toward a Chinese-connected case. The judicially apathic sentence is equally disconcerting.

Science published a tortured defense, saying, in part, “But Lieber’s conviction hasn’t altered their stance that the campaign has actually slowed the pace of U.S. innovation by scaring scientists away from engaging in important research collaborations between the two countries.”²³⁷

Such is the level of overt collusion, with weak DOJ policies²³⁸, who think that China is not a bad actor; or think it is tolerable to lie and get paid by foreign governments; or most harmfully, imperil U.S. National Security interests by allowing intellectual property theft. (China is renowned for this last one – stealing military blueprints to the F-35.^{239,240,241})

A version of this story appeared in Science, Vol 375, Issue 6576.

Last week, Harvard University chemist Charles Lieber became the first academic scientist targeted by the U.S. government’s controversial 3-year-old China Initiative to be found guilty by a jury. He may also be one of the last, says Andrew Lelling, the former U.S. attorney who charged Lieber nearly 2 years ago with lying about his research ties to China.

In long ago times, these sorts of crimes created national outrages when offered up by the media. Now, because of long-term complicity and kompromat involved, the response is muted; buried by the left-leaning media, researchers and professors. The well-trained U.S. and international media obey like golden retrievers for Xi.

The human rights abuses of China are not a secret. BuzzFeed (below) showed satellite images of Xi’s dystopian prison ongoing in present day China.^{242,243} The Uighurs story is told in The Guardian by Madame Haitiwaji, who was baited back to Xinjiang, China over her previous time there, using a retirement package owed from an oil company as the bait. Thereafter, she was held for two years.²⁴⁴

“What my husband was experiencing was all too familiar. Since 1955, when communist China annexed Xinjiang as an ‘autonomous region’, we Uighurs have been seen as a thorn in the side of the Middle Kingdom. Xinjiang is a strategic corridor and far too valuable for China’s ruling Communist party to risk losing control of it. The party has invested too much in the ‘new silk road’, the infrastructure project designed to link China to Europe via central Asia, of which our region is an important axis. Xinjiang is essential to President Xi Jinping’s great plan – that is, a peaceful Xinjiang, open for business, cleansed of its separatist tendencies and its ethnic tensions. In short, Xinjiang without Uighurs.”²⁴⁵

Haitiwaji describes physical torture based on time and activity. If one falls out, they disappear from existence.

“Right! Left! At ease!” There were 40 of us in the room, all women, wearing blue pajamas. It was a nondescript rectangular classroom. A big metal shutter, perforated with tiny holes that let the light in, hid the outside world from us. Eleven hours a day, the world was reduced to this room. Our slippers squeaked on linoleum. Two Han soldiers relentlessly kept time as we marched up and down the room. This was called ‘physical education’. In reality, it was tantamount to military training.

Our exhausted bodies moved through the space in unison, back and forth, side to side, corner to corner. When the soldier bellowed ‘At ease!’ in Mandarin, our regiment of prisoners froze. He ordered us to remain still. This could last half an hour, or just as often a whole hour, or even more. When it did, our legs began to prickle all over with pins and needles. Our bodies, still warm and restless, struggled not to sway in the moist heat. We could smell our own foul breath. We were panting like cattle. Sometimes, one or another of us would faint. If she didn’t come round, a guard would yank her to her feet and slap her awake. If she collapsed again, he would drag her out of the room, and we’d never see her again. Ever. At first, this shocked me, but now I was used to it. You can get used to anything, even horror.”²⁴⁶

She further noted, “I was chained to my bed for 20 days as punishment, though I never knew what for – I was told I would be going to ‘school’.”²⁴⁷

The BBC reported similar issues in China: “‘Detainees report having been punished by administration of electric shocks, forced to remain in stress positions for an extended period of time, beaten, deprived of food, shackled and blindfolded.’”²⁴⁸

Christine Fang: one of many of Chinese Spies, 249

The Washington D.C. elite undermined the Trump administration by placing D.C. snakes in his way. The Congress-led investigatory overreach to hide their own criminal behaviors and treasonous actions²⁵⁰, particularly deals with China that transferred technology via 3rd party businesses.²⁵¹ While CCP professors openly brag about their embedding in U.S. power structures.²⁵² As well, fueling up political compromise involving sex (Eric Swalwell with Christine Fang, above) or employing CCP spies for twenty years. (Diane Feinstein was close to CCP leader Jiang Zemin).²⁵³

As Lee Smith wrote at Tablet in April 2020:

“[T]he wisdom of exporting millions of American manufacturing jobs and large parts of critical supply chains for everything from medication to ventilators to a hostile overseas power is looking ever more questionable, as a novel pathogen of Chinese origin has wreaked havoc on the American economy and locked the entire country indoors. In retrospect, Richard M. Nixon’s 1972 meeting with Mao Zedong marked not only the opening of China, but also a nearly 50-year delusion about the nature of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) and its compatibility with America's own economy and society...

First on that list of those deserving of close attention is the senior U.S. senator from California, Dianne Feinstein—a longtime member of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence—who briefly made headlines a few years ago when reports surfaced that she had been forced to fire a longtime aide after learning from the FBI that he had been recruited on behalf of the People's Republic of China (PRC)."

No one represents the marriage of American policy toward China and doing business with the PRC better than Feinstein. Her promotion of trade with China to advance the interests of her constituents turned into apologetics on behalf of the Communist Party, as it aided her political ascent and augmented her husband's portfolio. In October, USA Today listed Feinstein as the sixth-richest member of Congress, with a net worth of $58.5 million—a sum that vastly understates her actual wealth. Richard Blum, her husband, is himself worth at least another $1 billion." [My emphasis.]

Feinstein's history with the Zemin goes back to her mayoral days and inviting the former Shanghai mayor to the U.S. for Thanksgiving. This while talking turkey about Blum's Shanghai Pacific Partners investment that secured a piece of CCP state-backed real estate action in Shanghai.²⁵⁴

Like President Clinton, Diane was eagerly on board with granting Beijing "most-favored-nation trading status."²⁵⁵ Blum profited well off this – and word got around to reporters and her political opponents. By 2000, despite Blum's best intentions, promising charitable donation of his profits, his opaque dealings (non-mandatory disclosures) were raising eyebrows. Undeterred, and rather encouraged by the voting block in California, Feinstein's responses were to ignore conflicts or joke about them. She is nearly 90, and her personal wealth now stands at $90 million.^{256, 257} (Feinstein health problems include dementia now.)

The traitors exist equally on Republican side as well. Maybe more discreetly, but there, nonetheless. In early May 2022, nominal Republican Mark Esper peddled a tell-all (the go-to move of the administrative state) claiming Trump wanted protesters shot in the leg²⁵⁸ and missile strikes on Mexican soil to destroy drug labs and cartel power.^{259, 260} Maggie Haberman of The New York Times like Jonathan Swain of Axios wrote about "personal loyalty" yet it appears that Esper, Barr, and Pence, all with book deals for millions, do not care much for that idea. Be it Trump's orders or for the country's protection. Haberman furthered a narrative about bungling the COVID-19 response (which one – the one the Chinese provided? Or Fauci's flatten the curve one)?²⁶¹

From toasts to silence. Xi Jinping's regime does not take Joe Biden seriously.

A CCP official might offer this insight: Why invest money and resources to build from scratch education when stealing technology and propagandizing your enemy to hate itself is so much more effective? Why not tell a politician's son he can have many millions if he just makes policies highly conducive to China's rise? Why not have the most attractive women schmooze and sleep with awkward, but successful, technologists and politicians that can access sensitive data or approve favors again worthy to the Communist Party's triumph?

That is how political warfare is justified; it is a wise investment in this geopolitical war game. But like a 1983 movie stated: "The only winning move is not to play."²⁶² (As Yuri Bezmenov, KGB defector said in 1984: "Don't fund your enemies"; and don't do business with them either.²⁶³)

This plan works well to strip Americans of their prosperity, their rights and liberties, while creating disunity in the U.S. populace, through the CCP's US-based propagandists: thus, an unrestricted war. The Western side is dwarfed in knowledge about this ongoing war – as many Americans companies (and western societies) wrongly see China as a benign actor.²⁶⁴

The ignorance of threat, and complicit silence while profiting, occurs as the CCP makes clear their intentions regarding Taiwan. Americans (and Europeans) routinely ignore Taiwan (once the Republic of China), the defeated KMT Nationalists, that lost to the CCP brothers and cousins in 1949.²⁶⁵ Yet Taiwan's importance to their lives needs to be a focus here.

Taiwan's technological and microchip innovation is a key linchpin to CCP's final dominance in this new, evolving multi-polar world order that ties neatly to the World Economic Forum's agenda. Taiwan's TSMC accounts for "an estimated 90% of the world's super-advanced computer chips, supplying tech giants Apple and Qualcomm."^{266,267}

Lawrence Wintermeyer in Forbes on August 5, 2022 stated that:

"You've likely never heard of TSMC though it is powering many of the devices in your life. It is one of the world's 10 largest companies with a market cap of $468 billion with its top ten shareholders comprising big U.S. pension funds and banks."²⁶⁸

And further on:

"This week's visit to Taipei by Democrat House Leader Nancy Pelosi has been celebrated by the Taiwanese and has infuriated the Chinese, who are now conducting large-scale military drills around the island. 'The current tensions in Taiwan should raise awareness that there is a lot more at stake with China than a historic territorial claim. Taiwanese companies play a big role in the global tech landscape.'"²⁶⁹

Apple's operations connect heavily to Foxconn, who in late 2022, had protests at its Zhengzhou, Henan province China plant over payment promises and living conditions.²⁷⁰ Foxconn has both Taiwanese (ROC) and PRC facilities.²⁷¹

In July 2017, Foxconn made a tax-credit laden deal to build a massive $10 billion factory in Wisconsin. But as of April 2021, that deal was substantially reduced under $1 billion, with CNBC snidely mocking the deal because Trump once lauded it.²⁷² The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel did likewise in December 2022, but placed the blame at the feet of Scott Walker, the former governor in Wisconsin.²⁷³ So far, around 1,000 jobs are connected to this highly expensive tax credit deal that rankled locals due to eminent domain purchases and excessive water usage.²⁷⁴

Yet, what drove the local problem regarding launch of Foxconn's Gen 6 fabrication is more detailed than this book can delve into. The Verge did an interview with former Foxconn executive Alan Yeung in April 2022.^{275,276} Historically, intense controversy surrounds Foxconn as their working conditions led to installing suicide nets in 2010, reflecting further the actuality of the Chinese model: work and slave for the elite.²⁷⁷

China, once a mere Communist backwater going into the 1970s, was offered access to U.S. markets from Carter's declaration of formal state recognition in late 1978 over Taiwan.²⁷⁸ This was an outgrowth of the Nixon/Kissinger outreach plan to Mao just as Taiwan was "de-listed" by UN Resolution #2758 on October 25, 1971.^{279,280}

July 1971. Kissinger (center) in Beijing

Future President George H.W. Bush helmed U.S. representation at the UN during this time. Intrigues of the PRC's entry with the ROC's remaining in the UN hinged on the appetites of American capitalists for ¼ of the world population becoming a market for General Motors to IBM to RCA TVs: the biggest brands in cars, computers and small electronics in 1971.²⁸¹

Taiwan's diplomatic position ran at odds with Kissinger's mission to separate China from Russia's orbit even though such was eroded for many years prior. Brookings Sigrid Winkler wrote in June 2012:

“However, in the beginning of the 1970s, the United States saw the geopolitical opportunity to move closer to China in a strategic move against their by then common adversary, the Soviet Union. The United States eventually broke formal relations with the ROC only in 1979, but the strategic shift in the early 1970s, combined with a large number of newly-independent former colonies that had some ideological solidarity with Beijing, turned the tide once and for all against Taipei. Still, it was a combination of Taipei and Beijing's longstanding opposition to proposals for both PRC and ROC representation in the UN, together with the global strategic changes, that led to the end of the ROC representation in the UN, and in consequence also to the ROC's expulsion from all other major international organizations."²⁸² [My emphasis.]

On September 12, 2001, The Taipei Times published a retrospective on the ROC's erasure from the UN. "The UN is an amphitheater whose gladiators are nation states, with everybody playing realpolitik. If the dual representation proposal were passed in 1971, Communist China would definitely have refused to enter the UN. We could at most drag things out for another two years or so before being ousted from the UN," [retired Taipei ambassador] Loh [I-cheng] wrote."²⁸³

In Kissinger's The White House Years, he wrote:

"On May 7 [1971] the Departments of State, Commerce, Treasury, and Transportation published regulations implementing the White House announcement of April 14 that liberalized economic relations with China. The Treasury Department removed all controls on the use of US dollars or dollar instruments (except those in blocked accounts) in transactions with Peking. As a result, Chinese-Americans were now permitted to send dollars to relatives on the Mainland. American-owned ships under foreign flags were also permitted to stop at Mainland China ports. United States flag vessels could henceforth transport goods destined for the Mainland from US to non-Chinese ports, or from one non-Communist port to another."²⁸⁴

Key signals of Taiwan's territorial demotion were sent two months prior to Kissinger's visit to the Forbidden City in July 1971. To quote Kissinger: "We were now committed; all that remained was the act."²⁸⁵

Such acts initially called "democratization through capitalism" later were quaintly guised as "Globalization" henceforth by the Kissinger and Brzezinski foreign policy pundit crowd.²⁸⁶ Kissinger as the roving mouthpiece of a "world order" and Brzezinski more subtlety and intellectually-driven towards the complete defeat of the Russians. The military muscle flaunted by the Neocon Bushes – that of Middle East wars to destabilize the underbelly of Russia, the "arc of crisis" – came out of the mind of Brzezinski. Brent Scowcroft, George H.W. Bush's National Security adviser, like Brzezinski's was President Carter's, said in 2012, "Over the decades since, China policy stands out as 'the most successful' part of U.S. foreign policy through that period."²⁸⁷

The goal, then, was to pull China away from Russia (then the USSR). A half century and a year later, on February 4, 2022, China pulled Russia into its orbit without much ado or outcry. In a 12-page joint communique, published by the China Aerospace Studies Institute, several facets of their far-reaching compact stick out²⁸⁸:

“The sides note that the Charter of the United Nations and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights set noble goals in the area of universal human rights, set forth fundamental principles, which all the States must comply with and observe in deeds. At the same time, as every nation has its own unique national features, history, culture, social system and level of social and economic development, universal nature of human rights should be seen through the prism of the real situation in every particular country, and human rights should be protected in accordance with the specific situation in each country and the needs of its population.

...The sides work together to ensure the full and effective implementation of the Paris Agreement, remain committed to fulfilling the obligations they have undertaken and expect that developed countries will actually ensure the annual provision of $100 billion of climate finance to developing states. The sides oppose setting up new barriers in international trade under the pretext of fighting climate change.

...The Russian side reaffirms its support for the One-China principle, confirms that Taiwan is an inalienable part of China, and opposes any forms of independence of Taiwan.

Russia and China stand against attempts by external forces to undermine security and stability in their common adjacent regions, intend to counter interference by outside forces in the internal affairs of sovereign countries under any pretext, oppose colour revolutions, and will increase cooperation in the aforementioned areas.

...The sides believe that certain States, military and political alliances and coalitions seek to obtain, directly or indirectly, unilateral military advantages to the detriment of the security of others, including by employing unfair competition practices, intensify geopolitical rivalry, fuel antagonism and confrontation, and seriously undermine the international security order and global strategic stability.

The sides oppose further enlargement of NATO and call on the North Atlantic Alliance to abandon its ideologized cold war approaches, to respect the sovereignty, security and interests of other countries, the diversity of their civilizational, cultural and historical backgrounds, and to exercise a fair and objective attitude towards the peaceful development of other States.

The sides stand against the formation of closed bloc structures and opposing camps in the Asia-Pacific region and remain highly vigilant about the negative impact of the United States' Indo-Pacific strategy on peace and stability in the region. Russia and China have made consistent efforts to build an equitable, open and inclusive security system in the Asia-Pacific Region (APR) that is not directed against third countries and that promotes peace, stability and prosperity.

The sides are seriously concerned about the trilateral security partnership between Australia, the United States, and the United Kingdom (AUKUS), which provides for deeper cooperation between its members in areas involving strategic stability, in particular their decision to initiate cooperation in the field of nuclear-powered submarines.”

The Washington Post fairly represented most of the document, though writers Robyn Dixon and Lily Kuo did not mention: human rights or climate change, which led off this document.²⁸⁹

The mentioning of nuclear submarines is a tell. U.S. submarines are key countermeasures to any aggressive, Chinese blue water navy. This reveals a key fear of the CCP due to the specificity, the type of vessel, and their implementation inside of the AUKUS security alliance. (Australia allowed China to acquire a 100-year lease on Port Darwin back in late 2015.²⁹⁰)

While China and Russia jointly complain about the actions of NATO, or any other body that might impede the CCP's designs, in mid-June 2023 a story made the rounds regarding China's spying²⁹¹, a listening post²⁹² and their work towards a permanent military presence in Cuba. Cuba vividly reminds of the Khrushchev-Kennedy 1960s showdown over nuclear missiles placement just 90 miles from U.S. territories. The Associated Press reported on China's foray, paralleling the same issue that U.S. military presents to CCP's ambitions to the erasure of Taiwan:

“China has been operating a spy base in Cuba since at least 2019, part of a global effort by Beijing to upgrade its intelligence-gathering capabilities, according to a Biden administration official.

The official, who was not authorized to comment publicly and spoke on the condition of anonymity, said the U.S. intelligence community has been aware of China's spying from Cuba and a larger effort to set up intelligence-gathering operations around the globe for some time.

The Biden administration has stepped up efforts to thwart the Chinese push to expand its spying operations and believes it has made some progress through diplomacy and other unspecified action, according to the official, who was familiar with U.S. intelligence on the matter.”²⁹³

The Wall Street Journal provided further grist regarding the cozy location of China in the Western Hemisphere, which started many years ago with their ownership stakes and friendly relationships regarding the Panama Canal zone as of 2017. The Journal provided this positioning:

“The heightened anxiety in Washington over China’s ambitions in the Caribbean and Latin America comes as the administration is seeking to tamp down broader tensions with Beijing that have been stoked by a host of other issues, including U.S. support for Taiwan. Secretary of State Antony Blinken was on a high-profile visit to China these past few days, meeting with Chinese leader Xi Jinping.

The trip appeared to halt a downward spiral in relations. But Blinken failed to secure China’s agreement to a U.S. proposal that the two countries resume military-to-military communications to avoid misunderstandings.”²⁹⁴

Foreign Policy noticed this encroachment in a May 2019 piece. Xi’s China befriended Panamanian leaders with thirty bilateral trade deals after disregarding Taiwan. Panama is a key choke point for U.S. fleets – the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets. FP’s Matt Youkee wrote in detail:

“Recently, China has deepened ties with governments across Latin America and the Caribbean, 19 of which have officially signed up for Chinese President Xi Jinping’s signature $1 trillion Belt and Road infrastructure plan. It has encountered little pushback or competition from the United States. But Panama, given the United States’ history in the country and the unique importance of the interoceanic canal, could be where the two powers collide.

Xi’s designs on Panama are clear. In the nearly two years since the establishment of relations, China and Panama have signed over 30 bilateral agreements. In December 2018, Xi Jinping became the first Chinese premier to visit Panama, accompanied by an entourage of executives from dozens of companies in the country’s construction, telecommunications, and financial sectors. At the accompanying trade show in Panama City’s Atlapa Convention Center, outgoing president Varela was shown around stands representing firms including Huawei and China Railway Design Corporation—hawking a new $4 billion high-speed railway project for the country.”²⁹⁵

Associated Press notes a key plank in dealing with China: education.

“The [Panamanian] accords included an extradition treaty and memoranda of understanding on commercial, tourist, educational matters.”²⁹⁶

China expertly and strategically ties in the denouncement of Taiwan, as a country, with all their Belt-n-Road initiatives.²⁹⁷ But a year prior to this, China did a strategic deal to kickstart their Western Hemisphere permanency as CSIS analysts noted then:

“In [late May] 2016, in a $900 million deal, the China-based Landbridge Group acquired control of Margarita Island, Panama’s largest port on the Atlantic side and in the Colón Free Trade Zone, the largest free trade zone in the Western Hemisphere. The deal established the Panama-Colón Container Port (PCCP) as a deep-water port for megaships, and the construction and expansion was carried out by the China Communications Construction Company (CCCC), a company also active in China’s island-building initiatives in the South China Sea, and the China Harbor Engineering Company (CHEC). The location of the port on the Canal has since allowed China to capitalize on Canal expansion. Additionally, in March 2021 the Panamanian government began the process of renewing the lease of Hutchison Ports PPC, a subsidiary of Hong Kong-based CK Hutchison Holdings, which serves as operator for the ports of Balboa and Cristobal, two major hubs of the Canal’s Pacific and Atlantic outlets, respectively.”^{298,299}

Following up in June 2017, China-Panama released a joint communique acknowledging their establishment of “diplomat relations.”³⁰⁰ The CCP engaged in a myriad of deals going back to the late 1990s to leverage up their positioning inside all the world key shipping lanes.

The Trumpet’s Callum Wood wrote: “It was less than a year later [in 1999] that the U.S. officially handed over control of the canal to the Panamanian government. Flash forward 17 years [to 2016], and today China owns and controls the majority of the ports and loading bays on each end of the canal.”³⁰¹

Here, the weakness of U.S. foreign policy, by all of its administrations since the late 1960s, shows how Chinese Communists schmoozed and subverted all the chief politicians and military leaders alike. Communists don’t operate differently no matter their country of origin.

In November 2015, then head of the U.S. Army Mark Milley identified Russia as its number one threat, saying that: “In terms of capability, Russia is the only country on earth that has the capability to destroy the United States of America,” continuing that, “It’s an existential threat by definition because of their nuclear capabilities. Other countries have nuclear weapons, but none as many as Russia and none have the capability to literally destroy the United States.”³⁰² Later, in the Army Military puff piece, Milley’s placating tone towards China really is remarkable and forebodes his actions under Trump:

“China is not an enemy and I think that’s important for people to clearly understand. China is a rising power that has been clicking off at 10 percent growth for almost 30 years. They dropped down to 7 percent last year and they will probably drop down to the range of normalcy and 3 to 5 percent growth, but that’s still significant economic growth.”³⁰³

Under the Trump administration, Joint Chiefs General Mark Milley intentionally broke the chain-of-command, providing reassurances to a top CCP general regarding the current U.S. defense posture, under Trump’s command authority, including a heads up regarding “attack.”

Milley still holds this top position under Biden; as he began under Obama as the top general in the U.S. Army in August 2015.³⁰⁴

The key principles regarding strategic planning begins closest to one’s shores – ownership, access and education on one’s land, ocean and air security – and identifying key choke points. As Yuri Bezmenov stated clearly: “We [the U.S.] is always at a state of war [regarding communists.]” Yet U.S. National Security officials fell asleep at the switch – or worse – are infiltrated, and compensated, by partnering up with a fascistic-communist ideology from the top of the command, on down.

China's behavior³⁰⁶, since WTO entry in 2001, is a dragon fire of power-hungry desires, hardly kept silent, or secret, from the world. Hong Kong was pivotal during the fall of 2019; Corona, at the Ides of March 2020, triggered a worldwide "lockdown." China now neither cares nor concerns itself with any negative responses by other countries – as it employs the largest standing army in the world³⁰⁷ and calls forth billionaires, such as Bill Gates visiting Xi Jinping in 2023, that will buttress CCP visions.³⁰⁸

The following response posted on Quillette as a counter to John Lloyd's October 10, 2020 article: "Is China the Governance of the Future?"³⁰⁹ The writer is Glenn Donovan.^{310,311} Donovan wrote (unedited but for clarity, added citations, and typos):

"The vast ignorance on display in this article is typical of the breezy meta-nonsense being spewed by our self-anointed elite, nonstop. There is so much wrong it's hard to know where to start. How about we start with some actual history? Always a good foundation I find.

The first real history of Mao's communist revolution in China was produced recently, Mao: The Untold Story.³¹² It's an honest chronology of the vast depredations and perfidy unleashed upon the long-suffering Chinese people by Mao in his blood-soaked quest for power. I'll start with the 'punch line.'

My take on Mao is that his bloodiness is on the level of Genghis Khan in terms of his wanton slaughter and ruthlessness. I'd add that Khan had a much nobler cause and justification for his conquests. Most people know nothing of Genghis Khan's actual history, he's hated most of all [because] he figured out slaughtering the elites was the only way to create stable governance and wow did he slaughter a lot of elite. Mao had no such guiding principles, he'd starve a hundred thousand Chinese to death without a second thought, telling them to drink more bark soup.³¹³ I'm not being hyperbolic at all...

Mao in fact colluded with the Japanese against Chinese nationalists and Chinese communists at certain points during the 20 year "long march" (not the two-year fight with the nationalists who are lied about utterly in almost all mainstream history of the time in order to morally justify the West's gift of China to Mao) which culminated in the creation of Communist China in '49.

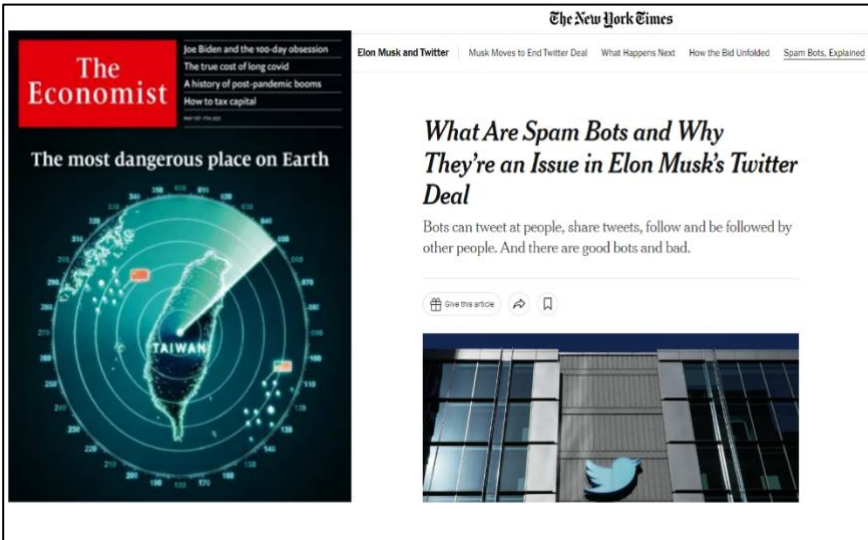

He was alternately shamed and cast out, and then grasped power again and shifted alliances - Mao would simply do anything to attain power. He was an acolyte of Stalin's and the USSR in many real ways, and he was directed and supported and supplied by Moscow throughout [1920s-1950s].

During this period, about 10 million Chinese people died. The nationalist Chinese patriots were betrayed by the West, the communist sympathizing FDR admin, and then the Truman admin, essentially destroyed Chang Kai-Shek [1887-1975], who was banished to Taiwan. Let's take a little departure on that subject.

People want to laud the amazing economic development of China as so incredible - what did Taiwan manage to do without communism? What about South Korea? These are two amazing natural experiments in which the classically liberal western order ran circles around communism.

And this gets to the major problem with this article - attribution errors. Talking about how the Chi-Comms automatically 'opened' their economy to the U.S. and in the '70s without talking about how the U.S. subsidized and guided every aspect of China's 'development' is utterly misleading. One would think communist cadres just suddenly came up with some brilliant idea.

No, the truth is after the Cultural Revolution, China was dying. And not just workers, I think guys like this author don't get what China does to 'intellectuals.'

A little quote from Mao seems in order. 'What's so unusual about Emperor Shih Huang of the China Dynasty? He had buried alive 460 scholars only, but we have buried alive 46,000 scholars,'³¹⁵ said Mao during the Cultural Revolution. He's bragging about killing 46,000 scholars - that's Mao, not Trump, for the TDS sufferers out there.

Mao was crafty and dishonest as fuck though. It plays the U.S. off the USSR and under Nixon we begin helping them develop needed basic infrastructure such as phone networks, electric and other energy and move on from there. Education, banking, financial markets - all curated and developed with Western guidance every step of the way.

Even the decision to double down on 'state capitalism' in the late '80s and '90s instead of open markets and free people was supported by Western elites.³¹⁶ The likes of Goldman Sachs and Morgan Stanley recommended the 'mixed model' or 'Communism with Chinese characteristics.' None of this was China's doing. The build out of their industrial capability was ALL LED BY THE WEST. China never gets there if we don't do it for them.

We helped them build their banks. We offshored so much of our basic industry to them which allowed so many greedy MBA types [to] get their 100 million so they could be 'Masters of the Universe.' Many an investment banker or corporate manager who didn't come from family money made their first big chunk of capital on such deals so the incentives for the elite was all upside.

Almost all of this was done without the consent of the American people. And as of today, every proponent of 'Opening to China' as it was heralded by Brzezinski³¹⁷, Kissinger and Nixon back in the '70s has stated it was an error. Nixon too, and even Kissinger in 2015. This is the biggest strategic error we've ever made as a nation.

If you aren't up to speed on this, read perhaps the best book on the subject, The 100 Year Marathon by Michael Pillsbury.³¹⁸ A fluent Mandarin speaker and someone who lived in the region and held major roles in the U.S. govt, you will be astonished by what we did to essentially grant China a superior position to the U.S. in Asia economically, geopolitically, and militarily.

So, the first illusion is that China is some normal nation on an organic growth path. No, it should be properly seen as the creation of Western oligarchs (and the oligarchy wannabes) to arbitrage global labor and supply chains at scale for the purposes of enriching these same elites in both societies. China represented a single market at such scale, American capitalists and post-national globalists simply ran as hard as they could to prop up China and create their golden parachutes. They justified it by lowering consumer prices and lying to us about it all. They created a mythology called 'globalism' to cover for it, pretending that all this was happening organically due to 'free markets.' [Laugh out loud.]

Today? China is best seen as a Han Empire with unrestrained ambitions. The Communist party system is a perfect tool of control for an autocrat, so it is used for social control as it is already institutionalized. The supposed morality of the 'system' with its Confucian elements is all window dressing for ignorant Westerners.

The way it's portrayed and sold to the Han Chinese is simple. First, the Chinese are superior and were the global hegemon for 2000+ years until the past '100 Years of Humiliation' in which the West denigrated and abused China. Han supremacy is innate to all of this. They are the rightful leaders of the world, and the past century is just a mistaken blip.

They are told their system is a meritocracy, but they all know that's a lie. They are told their system is just, but really, the underlying message is: 'Remember how awful the starvation and poverty of our nation was for the 50 years from the '30s to the '80s?'

My sense is that the traumatization of the Chinese from the endless deprivation and slaughter of those 50 years makes them grasp on to the prosperity they have now at all costs.

Consider that now CCP domination of all information in China is complete. The amount of influence the CCP has over any media, any content, any behavior digitally is something the average westerner can't even comprehend. Try buying a train ticket in China via WeChat - the govt approval is part of the buying process. And you are tracked by the CCP everywhere. AI is sprawling out over all the data, collected by the CCP, used to guide their social control and to extinguish all resistance. This is the reality of China today.

The U.S. isn't far behind. So many deluded Westerners who don't get that they already lost the war when they gave up on the limitations on govt the classical liberal socio-political order instantiated. They don't get that Progressivism/Socialism/Marxism all start by rejecting the classical liberal order as insufficient. Such people have been brainwashed to ignore that the vast, free civil society which arose particularly in the U.S. delivered more 'justice' and more prosperity than any state driven, authoritative order in the history of humankind.

It's so bizarre to watch such pedants twist their brains into knots making all this add up. But [to] be clear, while living in the prosperity brought about by the classical liberal order, many reject it to revert what is simply window dressing on autocracy, oligarchy, authoritarianism, and totalitarianism.

Call it Progressive or Socialist or Just - it's all the same crap.

Last. The aspersions about our society being in decline are all Progressive talking points. It is amusing most of all to hear Putnam's gibbering cited in this article. [Want] to know why we are atomized and less socially connected and live in a much lower trust society than our parents? Robert Putnam reluctantly published the book on this. His groundbreaking work Bowling Alone catalogued it.³¹⁹

Turns out the unrestrained immigration of incompatible cultures beginning right after the '65 immigration act - without any intention of assimilation - destroyed the social fabric of our society. Robert Putnam is such a fraud that he held off publishing the data he discovered in his study for 5 years.

You see, he set out to prove that mass immigration was a net benefit to society, and instead he found out that the importation of 70 million aliens with little to no affinity to our culture was devastating. Particularly in "communities of color" for your information. It turns out social cohesion matters, identity matters, culture matters.

When he finally published [it, Putnam] was honest. But even then, he morphed his talking points over time to focus on the "longer term" in which he claims immigration is awesome. [Laugh out loud.] It's so dishonest and to hear him still cited today; [it] is just so galling.

The guy is an admitted ideologue who hated the 'truth' his own research discoveries, yet he's cited in this article as an authority of some sort. He's exactly the kind of intellectual who has sold our nation out and the kind of thinker who cheered our self-destructive policies for the past 40 years.

To think the Chinese are leading the way is to admit you live in a world without history or almost any real knowledge about China's rise or what's actually occurring in your own nation. To claim in the same breath that the U.S. is in some kind of unavoidable cycle of decline is just as ignorant.

We are in fact in the grips of a Marxist assault on our sociopolitical order that has been greatly aggrandized by a generation of greedy, ignorant, Technorati types for whom politics is an accessory, an accoutrement - an aesthetic consideration most of all.

The Chinese laugh at them most of all. Most Chinese people I speak with nod their heads when speaking with me. They think the average American is a fool.

But hey - I'm not Progressive, and I don't think Trump's presidency heralds in the end of the U.S. so what I have to say is irrelevant. Continue on with this mental masturbation and sophistry. Just know its purpose is to hide the truth, not reveal it - even if the 'useful idiot' author doesn't realize he's doing so."³²⁰

This was included, unedited, because to know China, the CCP, is to know how it leads to many understandings about this ongoing crisis phase before reaching their objective: normalizing a one-world China rule. The tonality may be gruff or sarcastic, but one has echoed these sentiments in other writings.

Mr. Donovan sounded the alarm bells on China over two decades ago. A professional engineer for well over a quarter century, working in the oil and liquified natural gas patch that is Louisiana, Donovan wrote an editorial response in April 2001 to The Wall Street Journal (WSJ). This was eight months before the Bush administration gave China additional leverage on U.S. just as it didn't need it:

"George Melloan's³²¹ presentation of China's worsening human rights violations shouldn't shock any reader. They have never really improved. And we, fat and happy in our wealth, just sort of shrug, and continue political and economic policies that serve our national interests.

My question (rhetorically) is, what are our national interests?

While in the short term, there is some gain to be made by engaging the Chinese economically, I believe that in the long term we undermine our righteous claim to be the beacon of freedom around the globe. When we don't stand up against such atrocities, we are complicit in them.

Accordingly, we must appropriately arm Taiwan - and recognize it as a nation. In the inevitable showdown on this issue, time is on China's side as they improve their military capabilities. They will absolutely blink. They cannot win a conflict with us at this time and if they were to engage in war with us, they would leave them exposed to other threats in the region.

In addition, we must reject Most-Favored Nation status, block their entry into the World Trade Organization, fight their hosting of the Olympics and stand against them in the U.N.

I believe that many Chinese do not believe the Chinese government propaganda, bashing the U.S. I believe our cause would be helped by these people seeing us fight for their freedom and basic rights.

And when the eventual collapse of this regime comes, we will be positioned to be a friend to the forces for freedom that exist in China, instead of seeming like the greedy, self-serving capitalists that we are portrayed as."³²²

Prescient words that were all rejected by policy makers in D.C. George Melloan's 2001 WSJ article "China Thinks Human Rights Are Just a Power Game," provided the grist of what China has always been doing:

"While Americans were fuming over the detention of the EP-3E air crew on Hainan Island last week, Chinese President Jiang Zemin was enjoying the hospitality of Fidel Castro. The man from Beijing crooned 'Guantanamo' and some snatches of Chinese opera to Fidel at a state dinner. Fidel seemed to like the serenade, not to mention $374 million in Chinese credits to enable Cuba to modernize telecommunications, build a new luxury hotel in Havana, and buy a million Chinese TV sets, presumably all pre-tuned to the Fidel channel.

One of the main purposes of Mr. Jiang's Latin American tour -- which happened to coincide with the 11-day EP-3E crisis -- was to spike the annual U.S. effort to win United Nations condemnation of China's human-rights record. Before Cuba, he had stopped off in Uruguay, Brazil and Argentina. From Cuba he was off to schmooze the leftist president of Venezuela, Hugo Chavez, who endeared himself to the Chinese in Beijing in 1999 with a denunciation of 'savage capitalism.' All along the way, Mr. Jiang was dropping off favors in the form of trade agreements. Most likely he got what he wanted, at least tacit Latin support for China's position before the U.N. Commission on Human Rights.

The commission will consider a U.S. resolution tomorrow asking it to censure China. Human-rights groups don't hold out much hope that the 53-nation commission will vote for censure. The U.S. has put forth such a resolution for nine years, and for those nine years it has been defeated by a Chinese 'no-action' counter-resolution. The Chinese typically lobby developing nations before the vote, using both political and economic muscle. This year, the lobbying was particularly intense because China has put in a bid to stage the 2008 Summer Olympics in Beijing and was worried that a censure vote would queer its chances.

But while the Chinese leadership is sensitive to anything that might damage its prestige, it shows very little sensitivity to the substantive issue: the rights of human beings to live in dignity and freedom from fear. It regards its jousting with the West on this issue as simply another arena where the relative power of the two sides is being tested. It has blithely signed two U.N. covenants, one dealing with economic, social and cultural rights and the other with civil and political rights, but with little apparent intention of observing them.

Indeed, there seems to have been an open season on Chinese scholars from America lately. In a Los Angeles Times article, Bei Ling, a poet and researcher at Harvard's Fairbank Center for East Asian Research, estimates that there have been more than 100 cases of overseas Chinese residents arrested or detained by security forces in the last five years.

Jiang Zemin may be a charming presence when he decides to warble a song at a Castro dinner party. But China shows few signs that it is evolving into a truly liberal state. Indeed, mounting evidence of unspeakable cruelties to human beings, simply because they refuse to let the party bend their minds, points in the opposite direction.”³²³

The well-paid “useful idiot” author as mentioned by Glenn Donovan in Quillette was John Lloyd, contributing editor at the Financial Times and co-founder at the Reuters Institute.³²⁴ Reuters Institute proclaimed that, “Thomas Reuters Foundation is the only funder who has any role in our governance structure, which is set up to maintain our independence.”^{325,326} Reuters Institute received its substantial funding from sources including Google News Initiative and Open Society Foundations.

The Thomas Reuters Foundation receives further funding from Omidyar Network Fund, World Vision UK, Deutsche Bank, Gates Foundation and BBC Media Action.³²⁷ Omidyar provided Democracy Fund Voice nearly $10,000,000 in 2019.^{328,329} The Democracy Fund Voice is tied to BLM and will be discussed in Volume II.

Gates funded BBC Media Action yearly into the millions.³³⁰ In 2010, for example, a $27,637,483 grant was provided for “Diseases in Bihar.”³³¹

China’s ignoring of human rights worked well due to errant and neglectful policies pursued by the Clinton, Bush, and Obama administrations. Clinton fostered favored-nation status and China’s entry into the WTO organization after decoupling trade from human rights. Bush promoted an amoral war, a mortgage bubble, and equally ramped up the trade deficit with China, in gutting American manufacturing—without any standards of quality.^{332,333} While Obama, created further wars (Arab Spring), cozied up to Russia, only to get backstabbed, and sent Joe Biden overseas to handle “diplomacy” only to garner sweetheart deals from Ukraine and China for himself through his son Hunter. China did little, while these Globalists did much, to secure this toxic array of political malfeasance for their own and the CCP’s financial benefit.^{334,335}

The building blocks of the CCP economic plan go back over thirty years into George H.W. Bush administration announcing a new “World Order” (echoing Kissinger and Brzezinski), and Clinton’s administration working thereafter with the likes of George Soros while decoupling human rights from trade rights, so agreements with China were stomached easier.³³⁶

The LA Times wrote in May 1994:

“President Clinton acted appropriately Thursday in decoupling human rights from trade policy in renewing most-favored-nation trading status for China. ‘We have reached the end of the usefulness of that policy,’ he said, and we must sadly agree. It was a difficult political decision, but one thoughtfully made in recognition of the need to build a productive, long-term, strategic relationship with China. A China engaged and open is far more desirable than a communist giant in isolation...³³⁷

The President was unequivocally clear on two points: that the United States will continue to champion human rights and that abuses continue in China. But the attempt to leverage trade for improvements in human rights has fallen short. The question now is what is the best way to pursue human rights in China? The issue is real, but it should not be the defining element in political, economic and security discussions with Beijing.^{338,339} [My emphasis added.]

The Washington Post’s Hobert Cowen, two months earlier, in March 1994, installed fear of Americans losing jobs, to get the buy-in from a misinformed public:

“Decouple’: That’s the new buzzword in a desperate effort to solve the major battle between the Clinton administration and the Chinese government over human rights, and continuance of most-favored-nation (MFN) trade treatment.

Beijing has made clear that if it loses the tariff benefits of MFN in June, hence a competitive edge in some of their markets here, it would respond in kind. One can easily imagine that China would tell Boeing Co. in Seattle to keep its planes, while it turns to the European Airbus consortium.^{340,341}

Such decoupling of human rights allowed New York Times journo Tom Friedman to write toms like The Lexus and the Olive Tree: Understanding Globalization (1999) and The World is Flat: A Brief History of the Twenty-first Century (2005). Both served to sell the ideas of globalization benefits while ignoring the human costs and political instabilities. This as he roundly supported the Iraq War, his “big stick” policy that such globalist “arc of crisis” policies inflamed.³⁴² Friedman was later rewarded with a Pulitzer for his 2002 terror coverage.³⁴³

The Washington Post positioned losing of Chinese orders, regarding the aircraft business, a potential hijacking of the 1996 election run of Clinton.³⁴⁴ It didn't of course. But at that point, China had, and still has, bigger issues, like: providing water, feeding their people and instituting human rights on a Western model.^{345,346} Airplanes were a tool of information war (for both sides) – and not helpful to fixing Beijing's behaviors, nor substantial useful for Americans either.

U.S. trade deals became multi-lateral (NAFTA, ASEAN) instead of bi-lateral which was criticized on CNBC by the likes of Yale professors. (Xi's China routinely does bilateral deals; escalating since its soft alliance with Russia announced on February 4, 2022, including: Brazil, Saudi Arabia³⁴⁷, Qatar³⁴⁸, Iran and others now installing the BRICS+ monetary system.)

Barron's noted the Brazil deal in March 2023:

“China and Brazil have reached a deal to trade in their own currencies, ditching the US dollar as an intermediary, the Brazilian government said Wednesday, Beijing's latest salvo against the almighty greenback.

The deal will enable China, the top rival to US economic hegemony, and Brazil, the biggest economy in Latin America, to conduct their massive trade and financial transactions directly, exchanging yuan for reais and vice versa instead of going through the dollar.”³⁴⁹

CNBC interviews Yale's Stephen Roach regularly regarding trade policy. His analysis reflects a key differential in how to be at a rival's mercy and to be stuck in a globalist paradigm that has declined the U.S. while enriching only the top 0.1% of U.S. citizens. From Roach's CNBC appearance on September 28, 2019:

“Monday on CNBC, in the first on-the-record comment about such considerations, White House trade advisor Peter Navarro said the reports about them were ‘full of inaccuracies’ and amounted to fake news.

If the White House were to go through with that move, ‘it would be an unmitigated disaster,’ says Stephen Roach, senior fellow at Yale University and former chairman of Morgan Stanley Asia.

‘Open access to each other's markets [is] really important, especially with China likely to be the biggest consumer market in the world in the first half of this century,’ he told CNBC's Trading Nation on Friday.

Roach noted that the United States and China had been negotiating what's known as a ‘bilateral investment treaty’ for about 10 years before the trade war began in an effort to open ‘our markets to China and China's markets to us.’

‘We got really close, but now it’s been stalled out,’ Roach said. ‘We [the US] have bilateral investment treaties with 42 countries. China has them with 145. Free and open investment is the best way to enhance cross-border opportunities for multinational corporations, so we’re going the wrong way. This really would concern me if we were to make progress on it.’”³⁵⁰

Negotiations going on for a decade reflect an unserious desire for any deal at all. With Xi increasing the number of bilateral deals in place, and a knowable plan of dominating markets and threatening his own people for any non-compliance, one must consider Roach’s prior posting in Asia.

Roach is the author of Accidental Conflict (2022).³⁵¹ These quotes come from the outset of his book:

“There is no dark secret as to what happened: China changed which America remained stuck in its ways...A spectacular takeoff of 10 percent annual economic growth from 1978 to 2007 took its economy to a critical threshold. With per capita income having risen more than tenfold over that period, China was rushing headlong towards the challenging zone of the ‘middle-income trap’ where setbacks are more the rule than the exception.”³⁵²

Roach continues:

“With prescient foresight, or serendipitous good fortune, China embarked on the road to rebalancing, shifting its sources of economic growth away from increasing unstable external sector toward internal private consumption and indigenous innovation. But changes in China have gone far beyond economic rebalancing – there has also been an equally dramatic and worrisome tilt in its political economy of power and ideology. With the United States clinging to a timeworn growth model and increasingly consumed by social and political polarization, the die was cast: a destabilizing dynamic between the two nations has led to a full-blown trade and technology war.”³⁵³

Further on:

“The big question is whether both powerful nations have the vision and, ultimately, the political will to resolve this conflict before it is too late. As Henry Kissinger has put it, the United States and China are now in the ‘foothills’ of a new cold war. Predictably, codependency has entered the danger zone of conflict escalation.”³⁵⁴

Roach then puts forth his political viewpoint immediately and his sentiments reflect a damning disdain of the United States and a quick defense of China, giving them the victim narrative pass on the British Empire ingresses of the 19th century, while bringing Trump up as the main thesis to this conflict, yet again:

“From the flat earth theory and the Ptolemaic system of cosmology to tales of UFO sightings and the ‘Big Lie’ of election fraud promulgated by former President Donald Trump and his supporters...For most in the United States there is nothing false about the profusion of negative stories on China. They resonate with a broad cross-section of the American Public. In mid-2021, fully 76 percent of Americans had an unfavorable view on China, according to Pew Research.”

Tellingly, Roach’s book top three editorial reviews are from the Financial Times’s Martin Wolf, Gillian Tett, and Rana Foroohar.³⁵⁵ Roach routinely does such spots on CNBC³⁵⁶ that, like Bloomberg News, provide the CCP their narratives of choice.

Others, more grounded in data, like Charles Hugh Smith “Of Two Minds”³⁵⁷, regularly reflects on the pernicious nature of these Globalist Elite ruining the United States. Those so-called elite routinely siphon off wealth from the middle and working class³⁵⁸, enhance financial bubbles, operate with unethical and illegal behaviors that are never punished, and push radical social agendas to mask their rapacious desires to subjugate the American people within a CCP model of no rights at all.

Smith, however, offers solutions through his many observations and charts provided. Go local and independent. Be prosperous without the centralized federal government as your co-parent. In other words: Reverse the congealing of power into the hands of a very few. (This occurred off using the China model based on Status & long-term orientation (LTO) as we will show later.)

A Nation of Junkies: The Empty Future of a Stimulus-Speculation Economy

From Smith's June 9, 2023 blog at Of Two Minds, titled: "12 Ways to Cut the Chains of Financial Serfdom."

1. Support the decentralized, non-market economy
2. Stop participating in financialization
3. Redefine self-interest to exclude debt-servitude and dependence on consumerism and the Central State.
4. Act on your awareness that the nature of prosperity and financial security is changing.
5. Stop supporting distant concentrations of capital that subvert democracy by using their gargantuan profits to buy the machinery of State governance and regulation
6. Stop supporting the debt-and-leverage based Financial Aristocracy.
7. Transfer your assets out of Wall Street and into local enterprises or assets that do not enrich and empower Wall Street.
8. Refuse to participate in consumerist status identifiers and the social defeat they create.

Such short-sightedness, of one's political fortunes over one's country, emboldened the CCP. As Clinton (through VP Gore) pivoted to climate activism; behaved weakly (while China's unrestricted warfare matured under Jiang Zemin, the 3rd longest serving CCP Secretary General behind Mao and Xi³⁵⁹); and further fueled obvious human rights problems. Zemin achieved his goals easily whilst a new President George W. Bush ramped up preoccupation with 9/11's new security state apparatus (the PATRIOT Act) to get revenge on the terrorists over there.

China's entry into WTO in December 2001.³⁶⁰ Three months after 9/11.

China's export market grew substantially from its 2001 WTO entry while U.S. trade deficits mirrored this enormous policy change. China piled up U.S. currency, extra dollars for their elite's purchasing power in the United States – which leads to tensions as the CCP power builds up in concert with their cut-throat mercantile practices that garnered command over an array of strategic industries. Stories of poor product quality and dead pets from poisonous dog and cat food happened as well.

Some will argue here that China financed U.S. consumption since 2001. That is true enough. But why?

To reiterate: the U.S. financial sector and their aligned technocrats gladly help China achieve this as discussed.

This continued unabated until the 2008 Great Financial Crisis. A crisis that technically benefited the U.S. as it reversed trade deficit trajectories while China’s exports gains cratered as well. By 2015, the issue came to the fore again right as the Presidency – the chief foreign policy head – changed hands into what the D.C. Agency Class soon deemed, and sold to half the American Public, as a Russian stooge.

President Obama said this in 2009: “I believe in American exceptionalism, just as I suspect that the Brits believe in British exceptionalism, and the Greeks believe in Greek exceptionalism.”³⁶¹ Obama’s rhetoric was banal on the American Dream as he made empty promise after empty promise. He apologized for “Americans” while advancing his predecessor’s Neocon-laden policies. Obama’s presence in the Biden administration is visible in the appointments of Kerry, Rice, Nuland, Psaki, and nearly all the National Security Advisory posts.³⁶²

A Harvard Law National Security Journal article, published in September 2015 by Joseph Bosco, opined that calling out China was long warranted, knowing how China games the West, plays a tired record of victimhood, and hides other desires, but his target audience did nothing.

“President Obama has a unique opportunity to break the historic mold. He can do so by telling Xi that constantly hearing China rehearse its grievances against the historic injustices of the West is getting a bit, well, old. Worse, it cannot be allowed to serve any longer as a cover for China’s assaults on the international system. Despite Kissinger’s argument that China feels no obligation to an order it had no part in creating, that order has benefitted modern China enormously—indeed it has facilitated the creation of modern China, most notably by Deng after the insanity of the Mao era.

Yet, it was Deng who presided over the Tiananmen massacre of young Chinese who wanted political as well as economic reform. And it was Deng who cautioned China’s leaders to ‘bide your time, hide your capabilities’ lest the world find out too soon what China had in store for it. Xi Jinping has removed the mask and revealed his vision of a China Dream that could become everyone else’s nightmare.”³⁶³

Trump, meanwhile, received the most criticism for identifying such problem(s) and proposing new trade deals, openly, if unartfully, against the D.C., academically-aligned political forces. Harvard’s Belfer Center wrote about the impending Thucydides Trap. (Belfer employed Biden’s NSA Jake Sullivan as a senior fellow in 2018-20^{364,365}):

“If Hollywood were producing a movie about China and the US on a path to war, central casting could find no better American lead than Donald Trump. His insistence on ‘blaming China first’ portends a blockbuster finale. Will Washington and Beijing follow in the tragic footsteps of Britain and Germany a century ago? Or will they find a way to avoid war as effectively as the US did in crafting a Cold War strategy to meet the challenge posed by the Soviet Union?

In Destined for War, eminent Harvard scholar Graham Allison explains why Thucydides’s Trap is the best lens for understanding the most critical foreign policy issue of our time.”^{366,367}

The Trumpian trade policy ran at loggerheads to Global Elites. This occurred while staving off dozens of politically-driven investigations, two impeachments and the heel dragging amongst “his” Agencies. One saw exactly that The Swamp never sleeps. This is not to say Trump was not employing John Bolton (a PNAC sidekick of Victoria Nuland’s husband^{368,369}) or encouraging policies (trade deal negotiations with China) that could further the objectives of our peer enemies.

The agreed upon trade deal on January 15, 2020 contained a poison pill to its operating without a hiccup. As Doug Palmer noted from Politico:

“The U.S.-China trade deal that President Donald Trump and China’s Vice Premier Liu He signed on Wednesday provides an escape clause for either country to withdraw if a dispute cannot be resolved through high-level talks. That’s one of the many details tucked in the 86-page agreement.”³⁷⁰

COVID-19 created that hiccup.

Trump’s foreign policy was rarely operated cleanly; and Trump’s advisors faced 1,000s of holdovers from three prior administrations in military, intel and state craft dragging their heels or misleading him on national security as former Senator Harry Reid suggested be done in briefings to candidate Trump. But as October 2020 showed, 51 intel agents were willing to do exactly that. 42 lie openly to the American public to save face for the Biden campaign. This came about through Biden’s then campaign advisor, and now Secretary of State, Tony Blinken.³⁷¹

Trump was modestly effective, on certain issues, in a world where that put him ahead of his immediate predecessors. He was often a man alone with a Twitter feed. That discussion will continue in the chapter: American Trumpism.

These swamp-level aligned forces, in doing their best to beat and humiliate Trump, may have permanently lost the U.S.A. to an eager China seeking openly to rule the world alongside the NWO Globalist kleptocratic proponents that visit Xi Jinping in the likes of Bill Gates; or have their offices in Beijing as Klaus Schwab’s son does.^{372,373} Klaus gave Xi the honor to open Davos 2022 with his statements via Skype.³⁷⁴

Veteran Middle East writer and correspondent Lee Smith encapsulated the year 2020, in a nutshell, and should be the vital warning to all U.S. citizens about who is coordinating the population into a lethal trap:

“And because it was true that China was the source of the China Class power, the novel coronavirus coming out of Wuhan became the platform for its coup de grace. So Americans became prey to an anti-democratic elite that used the coronavirus to demoralize them; lay waste to small businesses; leave them vulnerable to rioters who are free to steal, burn, and kill; keep their children from school and the dying from the last embrace of their loved ones; and desecrate American history, culture, and society; and defame the country as systemically racist in order to furnish the predicate for why ordinary Americans in fact deserved the hell that the elite’s private and public sector proxies had already prepared for them.”^{375,376}

This did omen a Thucydides Trap^{377,378}, the rise of one country to a premier power placement while the current first-tier power struggles due to its failing political policies and growing social issues – coming from institutional corruption and not-so-hidden loathing of its own population. Thus giving the controllable populations “bread and circuses” and the most fearful, drumbeats of invisible enemies. The Russia, Russia, Russia narrative reigned on the U.S. media airwaves since Trump’s elevator ride right into the Russian-Ukrainian War.

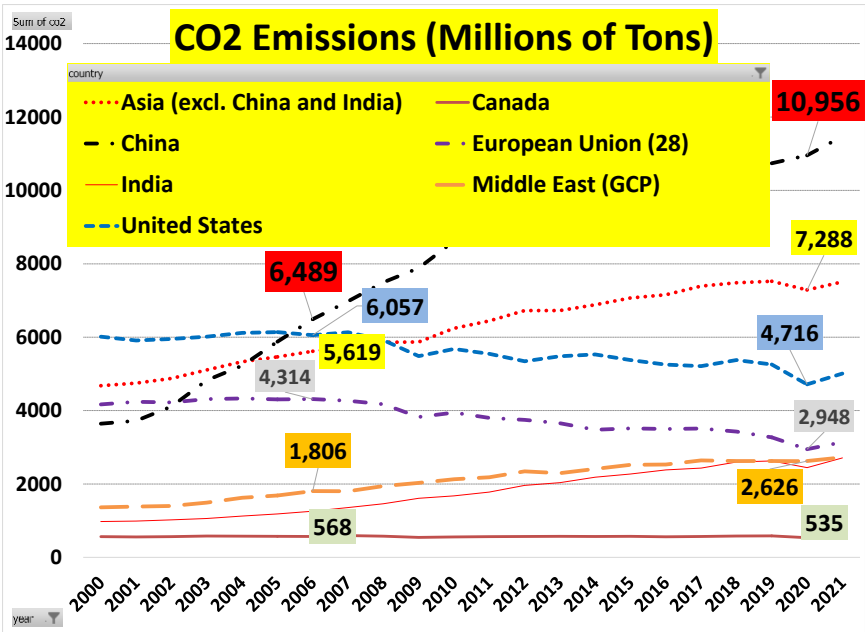

Such leadership vacuums are routine and real – when Globalist Parasites (GP) blather on about a climate crisis, a racial-gender crisis, a hate crisis, as UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres posited on June 12, 2023^{379,380}, while also promoting themselves as the sole best problem solvers, and worse, state these thoughts aloud, there is an enormous vacuum of humility and leadership. At Davos 2022, presented by the WEF, an elitist technocrat provided this analysis openly:

“The good news: the Elite across the world trust each other more and more. So we can come together and design and do beautiful things together. The bad news: that in every single country they were polling, the majority of people trusted their Elite less.”³⁸¹

That Thucydides Trap hit a key inflection point during the onset of the 2020 Pandemic as China came out of a “hard lockdown” in March, suffering minimal trade exporting impacts. This is due to other countries needing supplies that China could readily provide – a Sun Tzu tactic was at work here. Meanwhile, the rest of the Western World went into such a method, sans Sweden, and the United States paid a heavy price in jobs, small business destruction, wealth transfer to the Elite, while a Red & White Revolution occurred on the U.S. population from March 2020 to January 2021.

As noted, from the 1970s onward, U.S. politicians, businessman, and their not-so-subservient technocrats saw China as virgin territory to exploit for cheap labor, and then generate customer markets to sell back to, if the CCP provided that option freely to their people. Which China didn’t aside from their well-placed, CCP-partied Elite. Unfortunately, such Globalists’ visions come with extreme drawbacks and trade-offs most logical folks could have predicted would occur if they bothered.

Year	Asia (excl. China & India)	Canada	China	EU 28	India	Middle East	United States	Grand Total
2000	4678	567	3644	4171	978	1363	6016	21418

06-20% Increase	29.7%	-5.9%	68.8%	-31.7%	94.3%	45.4%	-22.1%	20.7%

CO₂ Hustle: All of Asia created substantial increases in CO₂ emissions.

First, NIMBYISTS pretend to do something about the environment despite their false bugaboo CO₂ increasing substantially worldwide. This is because China has minimal (if any) emission standards on their coal-driven economy.^{382,383} Second, those trade rights disregard human rights violations, that if, one were to dig deeply, such violations should change positive narratives about China's regime. Third, the benefits enrich the Elite not the American people in the long-term; nor are they of much use to the Chinese poorest populations either. This last point is key because many Globalist politicians benefit off their China investments through private companies, cut-outs, or coming directly from their law-making decisions.

Such trade policy shifts as well endangered key sectors – hijacking American ingenuity and imperils U.S. national security – into eager communist's hands. Among them, as COVID-19 put on display, health products needed for treating flus and other ailments.³⁸⁴

The Biden administration forced the WEF, Paris Climate Accords energy policy, reversing Trump’s cancellation of it in 2017, by heavily subsidizing so-called “green” energy – windmills, solar panels, electric cars and charging stations – all of which require rare Earth minerals, predominating in China’s possession from the lithium and cobalt mines to the manufacturing of batteries on the mainland.³⁸⁵

China’s dominance comes through political and financial acquisitions, such that: “China, the world’s third-largest producer [of lithium], not only focuses on developing domestic mines but has also strategically acquired approximately $5.6 billion worth of lithium assets in countries like Chile, Canada, and Australia over the past decade.”^{386,387} Australia’s biggest trading partner is China (25.9%), by a substantial gap over Japan (12.2%).³⁸⁸

Australia’s CCP orbit is well-conceived for China, occurring even before former PM Kevin Rudd, who is fluent in Mandarin, wrote his PhD dissertation on Xi Jinping.³⁸⁹ Australia’s impact on international relations, through Alexander Downer in the 2016 U.S. elections, runs at odds with being our “friends” from down under.³⁹⁰ Rudd though is happy at present as Ambassador to the United States for Australia.

The CCP acquired those mineral rights due to other third-world countries pliability with capital deals routinely based off a “debt entrapment” model.³⁹¹ At present, China does not squeeze too hard in these deals made. Just like any predator, the trap has to entice, and even benefit initially, until it is sprung – not just haphazardly, but in concert with longer-term agendas.

Entrapment is not merely a policy of the Chinese as the United States and the IMF routinely coax such deals from corruptible countries. The Global Elite are always about control through fiat money first; the sanctity of freedom, if even a passing thought, is last. (The 2013-14 Ukrainian Maidan Revolution hinged off an IMF deal that Russia beat with their own “strings free” deal. The U.S. State Department stepped in with their deal, namely: a color revolution to rid themselves of a Russia-friendly Ukraine leader.)

Eric Metz, a China analyst wrote (in 2022) that China has a food logistics crisis:

“Finally, we have to discuss agriculture. As you know from reading the previous post, China is facing a massive agricultural shortfall due to a shortage of trucking - largely driven by COVID lockdown protocols - has seen the capacity of freight hauling in the rural areas being cut by 86%. This has primarily hit farmers as a third are unable to get the seeds and fertilizer they need to grow crops.

That fertilizer is desperately needed...”^{392,393}

Russia is the largest producer of the world’s fertilizer.^{394,395}

On March 10, 2022, Fast Company’s Adele Peters, with a globalist narrative mimicry, headlined this global fertilizer issue as how to use less, saying this:

“Yet, in the same way this tragic war might move the world faster toward renewable energy, could it also nudge farmers to find ways to use less fertilizer?”

Fertilizer causes serious environmental problems; it’s a major source of greenhouse gas emissions, makes soil less healthy, and pollutes waterways when it runs off fields. (In Florida right now, state officials are trying to save starving manatees who lost their food source because extra fertilizer from farms upstream made the water fill with algae.) A handful of startups are working on solutions that can help reduce the amount of fertilizer that farmers need.”^{396,397} (My emphasis added.)

Peters targeted Florida in her Fast Company piece. Also required, she pitched Pivot Bio, a decade-old company in Berkeley, California funded in part by Rockefeller Capital Mgmt.³⁹⁸, and who’s major nitrogen product assists in corn production, primarily, it appears.³⁹⁹

Adele Peters once worked for Good Worldwide LLC., in 2012 and attended UC Berkeley.^{400,401} This good organization is aligned with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.⁴⁰² The Good website noted that:

“We work with brands and communities to create participatory campaigns and shareable stories that drive powerful results across business and society.”^{403,404}

In November 2012, a grant for $992,777 was made by the Gates Foundation.^{405,406} Fast Company’s Adele Peters started her employment at Good that same month. Good’s history is one of a vanity press and a failure to gain social media traction according to Wikipedia, hardly a critic of left-wing aligned organizations.⁴⁰⁷

While there can be arguments made – as China’s farming issues do revolve around fertilizers and run off – one cannot help but notice these problems are driven by the same globalist-connected folks with the same narratives funded by the same outlets.

The United States does not have a food supply issue unless it driven by Corporate China-first Companies (CCC) to gobble up farmland, hyperinflate prices, and lobby to Congress for their international hustles to destroy both food and water production^{408,409}, ignoring Earth can provide these things with common sense.

Though in 2022, unusual events regarding food production and logistics became more visible in the news.⁴¹⁰

In 2019, Trump's tariffs were impacting China's U.S. exports. Not hugely, but the nascent beginnings of turning back 18 years of damaging trade policy for the United States – as the differential in export power gap tightened slightly in late 2019. Bringing back businesses to the U.S. would not significantly enhance U.S. exports, initially. But such will impact a peer rival's exports from this ongoing decoupling.

All countries should maintain their best skilled labor, knowledge sets, and resources to achieve economic security. Though it is realized that some countries are without such abilities – due to lacking talent or key natural resources – a key aspect of acquiring or improving on that state is ties to encouraging liberal business practices (low barriers to entry to a business, no subsidizing MNCs, low regulations whenever possible) and ethical legal and trade policy (contracts in good faith, no dumping cheap and knock-off products). These “Western” held standards deteriorated rapidly throughout the world since “Globalism” started at nearly the same time the U.S. gold window disappeared in August 1971 alongside Taiwan just a few months later. The trek was slow – but seeable in the data history of U.S. debt and inflating away its currency.

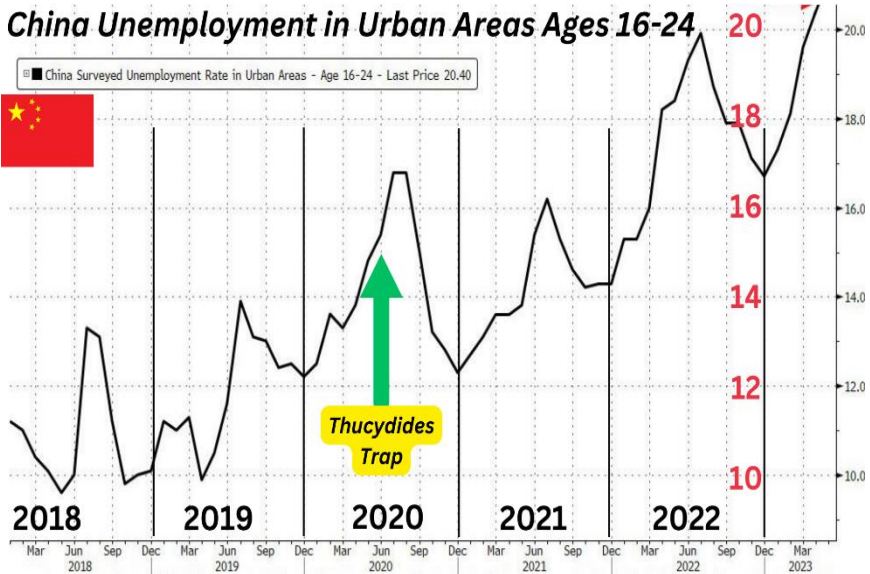

Most modern economists argue tariffs are always bad. Though routinely, other countries use them to protect their particular competitive advantages – for their key local industries. Those arguing economically against such protections will routinely circumvent them (by illegal means: bribing of public officials) with forced capital and forced human flows, thus the Globalist policy of subsidizing green energy (to boost ROI), with negative impacts to power grid stability, and encouraging illegal immigration in Europe and the United States, but never to China.⁴¹¹ Again, to destabilize non-Asia countries while exploiting cheap labor and increasing chaos for long-time citizen populations with cultures that do not respect or adhere to local laws.

The Globalist's financial interests are in China – and the CCP's recent messaging grows louder: keep doing this or the consequences will be bad for your businesses or yourself. While those threats are being heard, and responded to, some realities are well out of their personal control.

China is not without substantial domestic issues. Their China Dream has stalled in its youth population as unemployment is rising to record levels at over 20%, quadruple the overall national rate (5.4%), if China's numbers can be believed.⁴¹² Their pollution and land usage is seen as fragile and at the mercy of catastrophic flooding and droughts alike.

And while the U.S. national debt⁴¹³ garners lots of international attention due to its now-failing reserve currency status, China's debts are even more extreme⁴¹⁴, having a larger housing asset bubble with an opaque banking system that makes U.S. banks appear the pillars of transparency.

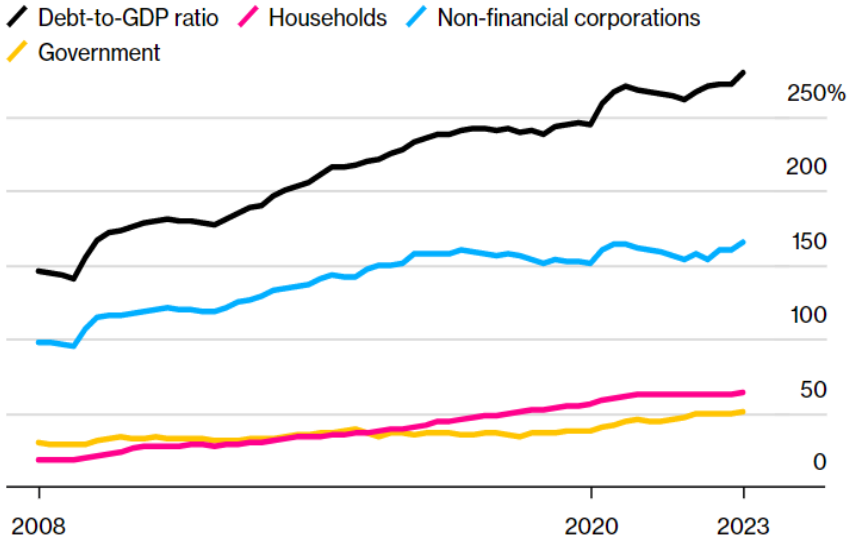

Like all nations of the world, or certainly all the top economies, aside from Russia, debts are groaning on their balance sheets⁴¹⁵; and are at the mercy of who holds the final notes on such debts, the central banks.

In many key aspects, the level of indebtedness is the more salient reason why these Globalist Elite are eager to prove their problem-solving skills. But not to the average person's benefit; rather, to maintain their hold – through deploying new tools along with old: surveillance and propaganda. In the chapter, Reserve Banks and BlackRock, such will be the overall topic.

New Record

China's leverage ratio hit record high in the first quarter

China Debt versus GDP since 2008 moved from 150% to 280%.¹¹¹

Kerry K. Gershaneck, a Marine Corps veteran, was inside the U.S. Department of Defense for nearly thirty years.⁴¹⁷ He is now posted as a professor at National Chengchi University in Taiwan. His book “Political Warfare: Strategies for Combating China’s Plan to ‘Win without Fighting’” (2020) insightfully reviews the history of the PRC’s warfare and their ongoing attempts against Thailand, Taiwan, and the ultimate coup de grâce: The United States of America.

“The PRC’s intent is not a theoretical conjecture. Beijing demonstrates on a daily basis its eagerness and ability to subvert and defeat—or, to use CCP parlance, to ‘divide and disintegrate’—the United States and other foreign nations. This intent and capability is explored in considerable detail in this book, which includes case studies of PRC campaigns to co-opt Thailand, a treaty ally of the United States, and take possession of Taiwan, with which the United States shares a special relationship.”⁴¹⁸

According to Gershaneck, such knowledge and awareness is institutionally lacking. To quote from Political Warfare:

“After 1992, political warfare-related courses disappeared from the curriculum of the universities that traditionally produced America’s diplomats, elected officials, and military leaders. Consequently, there exists no systematic way to educate emerging national leaders about the political warfare threat and help inoculate them to its strategies and tactics. As evidence, I routinely talk with recent graduates of reputable master's degree programs and U.S. military command and staff colleges. Invariably, the graduates tell me that at these esteemed institutions, they were generally taught that the PRC is our 'partner' and not a threat. They learned a little about soft and hard power, but they were taught nothing about political warfare.

One consequence I have observed firsthand is that many U.S. government officials and bureaucrats cannot recognize political warfare at all. For many who at least acknowledge it exists, it is 'too complex' or at most a mere 'niche issue,' as I was told by a senior U.S. official at a major American mission in Asia who was assigned to assist my research in 2018."⁴¹⁹

Gershaneck's list continued, noting bureaucrats considered this "important, but not their jobs" and more perniciously, "it is willful, resulting from co-option, coercion, bribery, indoctrination, intimidation, or psychological manipulation."⁴²⁰

China knows their tactics work. See: Hunter Biden, naval officer for one day; and later, involved in a myriad of deals inside China's orbit, garnering millions in deposits in August and September of 2017.^{421,422} China targeted the Bidens not only because of Joe's long-standing position in U.S. politics (meaning: he knows everyone worth knowing in D.C.), but because his age, lack of sharp intellect, renowned lying, dating back to the 1970s, and his addicted-addled son, Hunter. Hunter is eager to deal in anything – without any knowledge or work – with 10% percent flowing back to "The Big Guy."⁴²³

The CCP's political and psychological warfare relies on, understanding how to "target vulnerabilities and capitalize on American avarice, ignorance, vanity and hubris."⁴²⁴ Blinded people in charge of the very policies to identify the CCP's obvious threat to United States across multiple arenas from education to media to technology theft are routinely errant in knowing these are occurring.

Such is notable enough that, an "acting U.S. assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, Susan A. Thornton, a career foreign service officer, asserted in late 2018 that she had never 'seen any evidence' of PRC covert influence operations in the United States."⁴²⁵ While even the FBI and CIA noted substantial financial and foreign influence campaigns, through Confucius Institutes, existed in March 2018 as reported by Natalie Johnson of the Washington Free Beacon.⁴²⁶

Among the most-influenced educational outlets, targeted by China: Auburn, Purdue, Stanford and the University of Washington.^{427,428} This author knows Purdue University well and its growing Chinese population on campus. (One lived in housing with such Chinese students.) Under former Indiana Governor Mitch Daniels, such emboldened CCP factions made threats against another Chinese student late in his tenure as Purdue's President.⁴²⁹ ProPublica reported this in November 2021:

“[O]ther Chinese students at Purdue began hounding him, calling him a CIA agent and threatening to report him to the embassy and the MSS.

Kong, who goes by the nickname Moody, had already accepted an invitation from an international group of dissidents to speak at a coming online commemoration of the Tiananmen massacre anniversary. Uncertain if he should go through with it, he joined in rehearsals for the event on Zoom.

Within days, MSS officers were at his family's door again. His parents implored him: No public speaking. No rallies.

Moody realized it didn't matter where he was. The Chinese government was still watching, and it was still in charge. Just before the anniversary event, he reluctantly decided not to give his speech.”⁴³⁰

Each of those above universities received substantial grants from Bill Gates, a notorious Sinophile.^{431,432} Gates personally ran interference (for his own benefit) on Chinese broadcasts (CGTN) during the early days of COVID hysteria.⁴³³ This reflects the infected nature in the United States with pro-China Americans and the poor power dynamics within this fast-deteriorating relationship.

Natalie Johnson, of the Free Beacon, further cited from the CIA report that, “The CCP bankrolls several English-media outlets in the U.S. that try to influence perceptions of China and world events. The CCP also pays some American media firms to publish propaganda without obvious CCP attribution... and harasses or denies visas to journalists who publish stories critical of the regime.”^{434,435}

Such media is deeply influenced by Bill Gates – as many millions are pushed through outlets such as BBC Media Action⁴³⁶, NPR⁴³⁷ – that assist in a “soft on China” presentation. Throughout the 2020 pandemic, China garnered praise for their lockdown strategy. While U.S. media and medical journals, in particular, spitefully attack President Trump at any instance regarding the origins or the US's response to the virus.⁴³⁸

Gershaneck wrote about equally troubling communications softness at the U.S. State Department:

“As a guest lecturer at the Foreign Service Institute in Arlington, Virginia, several years ago, I asked instructors teaching courses on public affairs about the curriculum they use to educate State Department public affairs officers about PRC political warfare. I might as well have asked them to explained how they taught quantum mechanics...for they had no idea what I was talking about. These instructors were responsible for shaping the State Department’s strategic communicators, to help them compete and succeed on the perilous information battlefield, and yet they did not understand what the term political warfare meant.”⁴³⁹

Tellingly, our foreign service officers are “too soft” to handle a “hard” Chinese propaganda and political warfare operations. Gershaneck recounted that a presentation given by him in October 2016 to such a group resulted in tears. “Twenty-five minutes into the discussion, they neared hysteria and, in one case, became teary-eyed. They frantically tried to cut me off and convince the delegation to leave.”⁴⁴⁰

Gershaneck explains that by exhibiting a “Cold War” mentality, regarding China, that does not lead to promotion in the State Department. The younger foreign service officers follow the lead of the now “corporatized” senior diplomats, akin to former State Department officials like John Kerry. Meanwhile, the DoD proved not much better at the identifying CCP aggression in the South China Sea, with warfare operations tested against Taiwan and ongoing vitriol against Japan and the United States expressed openly as soon as Trump left office.⁴⁴¹

These were not the first indications. Rather, the complacency and corporate poison set in with various actions occurring during the Obama administration. Gershaneck named these, along with a key proponent of combatting this threat, retired General Robert Spalding, about rebuffing the growing Chinese threat:

- Vice Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Admiral Owen with business interests in China, lobbied to stop arm sales to Taiwan
- Captain James E. Fanell noting aggressive expansion of PLA in South and East China Seas, threatening our allies (Taiwan is our ally); Fanell was fired by Barack Obama for stating this assessment out loud.⁴⁴²

“Spalding sought to work with ‘leading think tanks, nongovernmental organizations, and law, auditing, and public relations firms that dealt with China’ in the United States and was ‘eager to seek their help in exposing the Beijing government’s influencing operations and sanctioning of illegal behavior.’ Astonishingly, he was routinely rebuffed—but why? Spalding writes that ‘some of the more forthright people’ said that assisting the NSC ‘might anger their Chinese funders or business accounts. The list of organizations that refused to engage with me publicly in my official capacity was stunning. Top white-shoe New York law firms. Organizations with mandates to promote democracy, freedom, and human rights would refuse to support my mission.’ Many of those institutions and elites were profiting off China, and they did not want to have those ties exposed.”⁴⁴³

In the main, China must continue various warfare tactics, internally on “disrespectful populations” and externally on “Western hegemony”, to achieve their long-stated 100-year plan. To Western minds, particularly its normal populations, one can barely grasp, or conceive of, such long-term thinking.

Such thinking was partly analyzed in Professor James M. Stüeck’s Cross-Cultural Management (2014) book regarding dimensions of world cultures. In this case, the long-term orientation (LTO) dimension was assessed. The Chinese scored substantially higher than even their closest neighbors (118 versus 96 for Hong Kong and 87 for Taiwan.)

Such LTO can be described simply as: “deferment of gratification increases with social class: children of lower classes seek more immediate reward in spending their time and their money than middle-class children (362-363).”⁴⁴⁴ This highly dominant Chinese dimension (LTO) – as Stüeck’s book noted – relies specifically on (358) ⁴⁴⁵:

- Persistence
- Thrift
- Ordering relationship by Status and observing this order
- Shame

“Persistence” and “Status” (and obeying this order, one contends) lay at the mindset and heart of the CCP’s and Xi’s geopolitical desires. Jack Ma did not observe Xi’s status; neither did Ye Jianming, bringing “shame” and not protecting one’s face (359) while dealing haphazardly with sexually-addicted and crack-addled Hunter Biden.

Xi is ruthless, another trait, observed in late 2022, regarding Hu Jintao, former paramount leader. Hu was escorted out, put on full display (shaming tactic), before the CCP’s 20th Party Congress.⁴⁴⁶ Xi then was formally declared paramount leader for life – and congealed his full authority over the PLA.⁴⁴⁷ Xi’s persistence since the late 1990s was rewarded.

Gershaneck cited that the main China (PRC) attack vectors are: “The Three Warfares, the traditional foundation of PRC political warfare, include public opinion/media warfare, psychological warfare, and legal warfare (42).”⁴⁴⁸ These represent a non-military or trans-military operation in the United States. Those include: “the American public at large, journalists who influence the public and decision makers, business elites, Congress, and the president and his inner circle (48-49).”⁴⁴⁹

Each one has particular instances seen throughout 2020-23:

1. Public at large – Twitter videos of Chinese lockdowns and Wuhan people falling down from SARS-COV-2.
2. Journalists – attacks on Trump for calling it the “China virus” coming from CCP-friendly operatives at CBS, NBC, CNN, et.al.
3. Business elites – Google, Twitter and Facebook CEOs censoring the President while allowing CGTN and other Chinese government-controlled accounts to post propaganda against US interests.
4. Congress – High-ranking Democrats and Republicans with close ties or entanglements to the CCP, going back decades, in many cases.
5. President – Biden consummated business deals through his son in the 10-figure range. Meanwhile saying that “they are not bad folks”^{450,451} and dismissing U.S. Constitutional Amendments as “not absolute.”^{452,453}

The Secret War Against the United States and Western Values? 454

War Room: Pandemic showed a falling Chinese person, breaking their fall.

Internationally, the PRC (CCP) are more active with lawfare campaigns to claim international waters supremacy, intimidate actors into conceding through media warfare and aggrieved status when nations deploy military assets close by their territorial waters.

“The PRC has also used lawfare to bolster its territorial claims in the South China Sea by designating the village of Sansha, located on the disputed Paracel Islands, as a Hainan Prefecture in an attempt to extend PRC control far into the region. In addition, Beijing uses lawfare to block U.S. military activities in Japan and Pacific Island territories (45).”⁴⁵⁵

Xi Jinping is well-versed in these games as his father was a top official in the United Front political warfare operations (47).⁴⁵⁶ The ideological foundation of Xi’s China Dream is ultimately totalitarian, Leninist, and based on Marxist principles.⁴⁵⁷

One of Xi’s main attack vectors is embedding deeply into World bodies.

“A key element of united front work is to co-opt international organizations. For example, the PRC uses institutions such as the World Health Organization (WHO) and the International Criminal Police Organization (Interpol) to conduct its political warfare operations. Before the PRC admitted to detaining Interpol president Meng Hongwei in 2018, the U.S. Department of Justice was asked to investigate whether Meng, a former PRC vice minister of public safety, was abusing his position at Interpol to harass or persecute Chinese dissidents and activists abroad.

Concurrently, the WHO has been accused of turning a blind eye to the PRC’s cover-up of the COVID-19 global pandemic, which has killed nearly 1.2 million people globally as of this writing. The WHO has also bowed to PRC direction by excluding Taiwan from the World Health Assembly during the past few years, in violation of its own charter (47).”⁴⁵⁸

Gershaneck’s book pulled together the “innovative” parts of Political Warfare under which Xi Jinping operates, at present, going back yet again to Sun Tzu, adding in Qin Shi Huang, and the Russian methodology that Yuri Bezmenov described for American audiences in the 1980s. (Yuri’s assessment was made prior to China’s overt planning stages for an overthrow of the United States by ideological subversion.)

Sun Tzu: “Subjugating the enemy’s army without fighting is the true pinnacle of excellence (56).”⁴⁵⁹

Qin Shi Huang: “the worldviews of its first emperor, Qin Shi Huang, provides the traditional strategic culture of centralized despotism, coercion, and persuasion that lays the foundation for contemporary CCP political warfare (58).”⁴⁶⁰

Qin’s foreign policy was one of aggressive expansionism, intended to attain complete control over the region—and eventually the world—to achieve total hegemony. The natural extension of totalitarianism, hegemony would lead to order, ensuring that the Chinese empire avoided the chaos that characterized so much of its history (59).”⁴⁶¹

Russians: “In nearly all aspects, the Soviet Union initially provided the role model for Chinese Communist policy, organization, and operation. Mao and his followers learned operational arts, such as political warfare, from the Moscow-led Communist International (Comintern). As they adapted those Soviet operational arts to China’s own unique historical context, they merged Western revolutionary theory and practice with their own version of what might be termed ‘total war with Chinese characteristics.’ Mao combined China’s historical strategic culture with Comintern instruction as well as individual insights from Carl von Clausewitz, Lenin, Stalin, Leon Trotsky, and others (60).”⁴⁶²

United front strategy was originally developed by the Bolsheviks during the Russian Civil War. It called for cooperating with nonrevolutionaries for practical purposes—for example, to defeat a common enemy—and winning them over to the revolutionary cause. In China, the strategy was first used in the 1920s to form an alliance between the CCP and KMT to end warlordism (61).

Since then, this focus on influencing, co-opting, demoralizing, and subverting enemy elites and military forces has remained consistent for almost 100 years. Co-option of non-Communist forces remains its essence today, although exporting revolution is less important now than exporting the totalitarian China Model (62).”⁴⁶³

Such co-opting intertwined with US-based scientists and billionaires alike. Natalie Winters once at The National Pulse regularly uncovered deep connections fostered back to China through the years, particularly to Wuhan, and their P4 Lab. In an article titled, “The Scientists ‘Debunking’ The Wuhan Lab Leak Theory Admit Being ‘Collaborators’ And Honorees Of Chinese Communist Party”, Winters noted that:

“In March 2020, NBC Science Contributor Dr. Joseph Fair called for the Trump administration to ‘stop blaming China’ for the outbreak of the virus, despite mounting evidence – even at the time – that China was hiding information and data, and silencing whistleblowers.

Dr. Fair equated called the lab leak theory – now increasingly mainstream – as a ‘conspiracy.’”^{464,465}

As it turns out, Dr. Fair is very familiar with the Wuhan Lab, speaking there in 2013, and knows the bat woman, Shi Zengli, directly. In the Origin Stories chapter, Ralph Baric, Peter Daszak, and gain of function (GOF) studies come into better view. Thanks, in large part, to journalists that are not working for the billionaire-run praetorian media.

The usual billionaires, connected to the key events of 2020, are neck deep in providing China positive media coverage and have been for years. Winters wrote in article titled, “Google, Soros, & Gates-Funded Media Outlet ‘Project Syndicate’ Publishes Op-Eds For China’s State Media.”

“The globalist propaganda outlet – founded in 1995 – has also been lauded by the Chinese Communist Party’s Ministry of Foreign Affairs, with its Twitter account praising the outlet’s content defending genocide in Xinjiang as ‘objective and informative.’”^{466,467}

Winters continued further on, noting a myriad of articles written and the CCP-controlled outlets favored by these billionaires.

“Among the state-controlled media outlets Project Syndicate partners with, however, are China Global Television Network (CGTN), China Daily, and Global Times.

Together, these sites have published nearly 2,000 articles from the outlet, including content praising the Chinese Communist Party and attacking the U.S. and populism. What’s more, the Chinese state-run media outlets appear to exploit Project Syndicate content for legitimacy, often burying the fact that the content was obtained through Project Syndicate at the bottom of articles.”^{468,469}

Xi Jinping’s patience has limits. Attempts to embarrass him or corral his BRI agenda come with uncomfortable interactions. Such revealing interactions occurred with Canadian PM Justin Trudeau in November 2022. Xi showed expressions of contempt as he talked through a translator to Trudeau about leaked conversations. Xi’s translator said:

“Everything we've been discussing has been revealed in the newspapers, and that's not appropriate. This is not the way a conversation should be held.”⁴⁷¹

Trudeau responds meekly back:

“In Canada, we believe in free and open dialogue, and that is what we will continue to have. We will continue to look to work constructively together, but there will be things we will disagree with.”⁴⁷²

Among the issues driving these tensions for Canada: election interference⁴⁷³, infrastructure security (hydroelectric fraud)⁴⁷⁴ and technology relations with Iran (Huawei)⁴⁷⁵, regarding actions all coming from China. Al Jazeera’s Frederik Kelter reported on Canadian election interference in April 2023:

“The alleged network includes Chinese diplomats, Canadian politicians, business owners and international students. They are accused of using their influence to support pro-Beijing candidates and scuttle voices critical of China.

One of those figures is the former Chinese Consul General of Vancouver Tong Xiaoling. In a leak to the newspaper The Globe and Mail, Tong allegedly boasted that Chinese efforts resulted in the defeat of two candidates from Canada’s Conservative Party in the province of British Columbia. Chiu was one of them.”⁴⁷⁶

Hydro-Québec employee Yuesheng Wang was arrested in Canada for: “obtaining trade secrets, unauthorized use of a computer, breach of trust by a public officer and obtaining trade secrets, a charge under the Security of Information Act (SIA). The crimes were allegedly committed between February 2018 and October 2022.”⁴⁷⁷

Such spying and interference came out as well regarding evidence of U.S. 2020 election meddling. This centered on Hunter Biden's laptop, who was on tape discussing his interactions with the "fucking spy chief of China."⁴⁷⁸

Xi's China (one speculates here) threatened to expose the darkest secrets of the U.S. ruling class through a blackmail scheme. How? In reminding D.C. power players of the dealings of Hunter. In late September 2020, three hard drives were sent to the Department of Justice, and separately, Nancy Pelosi's office. These drives had kompromat on Hunter Biden, CCP holdings worldwide, and sordid details on Michael Bloomberg as well.⁴⁷⁹

Ever since Biden won, his administration (2021-3) stated desires undermine U.S. national security at the US/Mexico border and abroad in the Afghanistan withdrawal. The green energy agenda additionally undermines U.S. national security while Biden's EOs promote destabilizing programs like DEI and ESG regularly. Biden's DOJ and DHS target and hyper-focused on low-level priorities, regarding trespassing charges at J6 defendants, emulating the CCP in many respects.

On foreign policy, the CCP's diplomatic behaviors thereafter towards a Biden Presidency show intense disrespect for America's political class.⁴⁸⁰ NBC reported that Chinese Foreign Affairs chief Yang Jiechi critiqued the comments of Tony Blinken, for 17 minutes straight, remarking that:

"China is firmly opposed to U.S. interference in China's internal affairs. We have expressed our staunch opposition to such interference, and we will take firm actions in response of human rights. We hope that the United States will do better on human rights... [referring to BLM in passing] And the United States has United States-style democracy. And China has Chinese-style democracy. It is not just up to the American people, but also the people of the world, to evaluate how the United States has done in advancing its own democracy in China's case, after decades of reform and opening up, we have come a long way in various fields."⁴⁸¹

A top CCP minister suggesting that the people of the world can weigh in on United States democracy reflects the disdain it has for the United States Republic. Such disdain may be well-founded given what Xi knows about Biden and his dealings. Even as many ordinary Americans are keenly aware of this disrespect shown, the Praetorian Media (PM) never reversed course to tell truths damaging to Washington D.C. Because the PM's access comes from D.C.'s intel and military nexus of power.

On January 8, 2021, a full-scale social media onslaught against United States and its citizens began. Twitter cancelled Donald Trump, and that de-platforming carried forth onto Google, Amazon, and other behemoth companies around the world, moving in lockstep. (Amazon coordinated to offline Parler through control of Parler's servers. Parler was a weak conservative fallback to Twitter.⁴⁸²)

This date aligned with alarming CCP communications. General Mark Milley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, contacted General Li Zuocheng that same day to say, "We are not going to attack or conduct any kinetic operations against you."⁴⁸³ This as Trump's tweet on January 6th told a D.C. rally to go home, peacefully.

Milley, went much further though, telling the CCP general counterpart, he'd give warning of a U.S. attack. Aside from the absurdity of this gaslighting CIA tactic, to heighten peril for possible political advantage against Trump et. al., this is also a treasonous act.

Milley does not have any command authority to decide, or warn, any foe of any forthcoming assault, or lack thereof. It undermines every military operation tenet – endangering the very population Milley is sworn to protect. And yet, Milley still holds this position under President Biden.

Such backchannel communications were occurring pre-election from General Milley according to accounts in the book Peril by Bob Woodward. As CNBC's Christina Wilkie wrote in September 2021: "All of Milley's calls were coordinated with the rest of the Department of Defense and other relevant agencies, [Col. Dave] Butler added. Milley did not tell Trump about the calls...Milley learned in October 2020 that the Chinese had become concerned that Trump would preemptively attack China because Trump was losing the 2020 election and his rhetoric against China was growing increasingly hostile."^{484,485} [My Emphasis.]

On January 10th, Liz Cheney, daughter of Dick Cheney, a Washington heavy since the Ford administration⁴⁸⁶ and VP to Bush 43, was plotting against Trump, and conferencing with then Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy. Liz and Kevin discussed resignation and the 25th amendment process shortly after the January 6th chaos.⁴⁸⁷

Cheney laid this foundation pre-January 6th with a Secretaries of State letter. McCarthy, subpoenaed by the J6 Committee in May 2022, will he take questions from Liz Cheney? (Note: This though is more of a show trial than any investigation. But it gives the appearance of doing something – to feed voters the Praetorian Media's chief narrative of the J6 event.⁴⁸⁸)

But the more immediate reason for this “perilous” cabal’s action was a coup d’etat emanated from the DOJ, headed by Barr, after acquiring those hard drive(s) as evidence on Hunter Biden.⁴⁸⁹ (The DOJ/FBI had these by December 9, 2019, according to Jack Maxey and Sam Faddis.⁴⁹⁰)

The New York Times, on March 16, 2022, tells us the laptop is real.⁴⁹¹ A Wall Street Journal Op-Ed took 24 paragraphs to get to that conclusion.⁴⁹² Hunter’s emails are now online.⁴⁹³)

Such an operation is also consistent with several data points. The Russians, according to media reports and cybersecurity experts, targeted Burisma late last year for cyber collection and gained access to its emails. And Ukrainian politician and businessman Adryi Derkach, identified and sanctioned by the US Treasury Department for being a 10-year Russian agent interfering in the 2020 election, passed purported materials on Burisma and Hunter Biden to Giuliani.

Our view that the Russians are involved in the Hunter Biden email issue is consistent with two other significant data points as well. According to the Washington Post, citing four sources, “U.S. intelligence agencies warned the White House last year that Giuliani was the target of an influence operation by Russian intelligence.”

In addition, media reports say that the FBI has now opened an investigation into Russian involvement in this case. According to USA Today, “...federal authorities are investigating whether the material supplied to the New York Post by Rudy Giuliani...is part of a smoke bomb of disinformation pushed by Russia.”

We do not know whether these press reports are accurate, but they do suggest concern within Executive Branch departments and agencies that mirrors ours. It is high time that Russia stops interfering in our democracy.

Paramount Leader Xi Jinping does pose an existential threat to all humanity and their civil rights under any Constitution. Let that sink in.

Let that be your guide ahead in reading the rest of this book. He has “help,” as those forces are either blackmailed, or worse yet: agree with him on 100% economic and social control, China’s rise to 1-world dominance, and the destruction of all the Western World’s freedoms and economies by no later than 2049.

This aligns well with the stated goals of the United Nations by 2050.⁴⁹⁴ Others too (WEF front men like Schwab) jockey in here as well – or make alliances with China for this endgame such as Russia has done for now.⁴⁹⁵

The policies of the past fifty years assured the rise of China’s CCP High-status class. It proved a worthy path as well for Wall Street’s Masters of the Universe that do not care about God (or country). This dilemma has metastasized, decades later, into the present-day, world-altering crisis.

¹³⁶ People who do not have children, or have poor relationship track records, who would sneer or snicker at this notion are psychologically defective, in many respects. Their poor upbringings and outcomes do not translate well to policy (agendas), though they undoubtedly prefer that, based on their behaviors, words and actions in recent decades.

Moreover, this author knows quite a bit about the particular case of not obtaining a good childhood or relationship success as an adult. But one would never use that as a reason or manipulation to deprive a child (and their loving parents) of commonsense upbringings and forgoing decisions that can ruin one's life – such as any early sexual indoctrination or transgender mutilation while not even legally capable to provide consent (that of 18 years of age).

One would even entertain raising the age of consent to 21 for these areas: draft into military service, drinking*, medical procedures regarding sex or sexual presentation without a 6-month mental evaluation by independent, non-incentivized psychologists, voting, and educational contracts where there is no adult co-signer. Recent observations and studies show an immaturity in the younger generation, driven by poor family upbringings (rampant divorce, single-parent homes, social media) that have stunted all society's critical thinking skills. The blunt analysis: teenagers are less mature and intelligent than their predecessors.

Lastly, the State is not capable of balancing its budget. Why should it be ever involved in personal and permanent choices regarding a person's sex life or orientation? Many educational administrators and teachers have sorely forgotten the word – boundaries – with respect to their actual role in a schoolkid's life. If anyone needs re-education and stern evaluations – the present-day teacher and school board administrator – would be scheduled for these struggle sessions, in my estimation. ***

*All the world here

 Psychologists that are vetted regularly for their approaches to mental and physical health

One is only half-jesting here. But evaluations and acknowledgement of limitations are needed.
